Judge Blocks Sterilization Regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Warning that there's a fine line between population control and race improvement, a federal judge has struck down new federal rules governing the sterilization of up to 150,000 poor Americans each year.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell barred the government Friday from financing the sterilization of any more minors or mentally incompetent persons, and ordered new safeguards to protect needy adults from being coerced into sterilizations.

The impact of the decision was to prohibit the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare from paying for any more sterilization operations until it has written new regulations overcoming the court's objections.

"The dividing line between family planning and eugenics is murky," Gesell wrote in a 12-page opinion backed up with a three-page order.

"Whatever might be the merits of limiting irresponsible reproduction, which each year places increasing numbers of unwanted or mentally defective children into tax-supported institutions, it is for Congress and not individual social workers and physicians to determine the manner in which federal funds should be used to support such a program," he said.

Gesell said that the government has been financing between 100,000 and 150,000 sterilizations of low-income persons annually, including 2,000 to 3,000 under 21 years of age and fewer than 300 under 18.

No statistics were offered indicating how many mentally incompetent persons have been sterilized. HEW has said that fewer than 1,000 minors and mentally incompetent were sterilized through federally aided programs each year.

Since last summer, HEW has frozen the use of its funds to sterilize minors and the incompetent.

Man Sought For Kidnap Of 3 Boys

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — FBI agents and Huntington police were searching for a 26-year-old man who is charged with abducting three boys from a home for neglected children here.

Authorities said Roger Dale Blankenship disappeared with the boys 15 days ago. Blankenship, a "house father" at the institution, has been charged by city police with abduction and by the FBI with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

A Welfare Department worker assigned to the center said the boys—aged 10, 14, and 15—were "seen leaving in Blankenship's car. Until that time we didn't think the boys were with Blankenship."

The Huntington Advertiser said the center didn't report the disappearance until March 1 and that the police department withheld the information until this week when a member of the newspaper staff received a tip that the man and boys were missing.

Mrs. Margaret Rhodes, director of Child Care Services at the Cammack Children's Home where Blankenship was employed, said he was hired last September. She admitted that his references were never checked.

She said he had spoken of looking for another job.

"He told me he would have to leave when the children were asleep because he was so attached to them he couldn't stand to say goodbye," she said. "Naturally when I heard he left in the middle of the night I wasn't surprised and we didn't think the boys were with him until some of the other children said they had seen them leave together."

500 Coal Mines Facing Shutdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 500 coal mines accounting for 5 per cent of U.S. production face government closure March 30 for failing to comply with federal safety standards.

Says Watergate Charges Are False

CHICAGO (AP)—Launching a series of image-building forays around the country, President Nixon has declared that all Watergate-related accusations against him are "totally false."

Fielding an hour of questions Friday from members of the Executives Club of Chicago, Nixon said that the presidency itself would be gravely damaged if he resigned as an innocent man.

Nixon told the nationwide television-radio audience that if he were to quit, any future president could be removed simply by becoming the target of unproven charges.

Tonight the President will join Mrs. Nixon in Nashville to help dedicate a new home for the Grand Ole Opry and on Tuesday will have another hour-long broadcast question-and-answer session before a Houston audience.

In the wide-ranging Chicago appearance before what proved to be a friendly audience, Nixon also made other major points:

—European allies are balking at negotiating with the United States on economic and political issues, he said, and therefore his planned April trip to Europe to sign a new statement of principles for the Atlantic community has been derailed.

—While there has been no official word on ending the Arab oil embargo, suggestions that strings may be attached prompt him to say that "the United States is not going to be pressured by its friends in the Middle East and that pressure could upset American efforts to promote a peace settlement in that region."

—The administration will continue to pursue detente with the Soviet Union, believing the alternative might be a $100 billion escalation in arms outlays and more difficult prospects for Soviet Jews wishing to emigrate to Israel.

—The President will cooperate with the House Judiciary Committee in its impeachment inquiry "as fully as I possibly can to get a prompt and just resolution of this matter." However, he will insist on drawing the line against granting a "fishing license" for searches of his files because, in his view, that also would weaken the presidential office.

Nixon was not asked directly in Chicago about differences between two of his past statements on a crucial Watergate issue—whether or when he was told hush money was being paid to original defendants in the burglary case.

At a March 6 news conference, Nixon said ousted counsel John W. Dean III told him last March 21 "that payments had been made to defendants for the purpose of keeping them quiet, not simply for their defense."

However, in an Aug. 15 television speech, Nixon said he was "only told that the money had been used for attorneys' fees and family support, not that it had been paid to procure silence from the recipients."

The President raised the matter himself in the Chicago appearance, saying in effect that his March 6 statement was not meant to suggest hush money was paid as part of a cover-up because, he said, such questions still must be resolved in the courts.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler later told reporters he did not expect Nixon to discuss the issue further, saying "I think it covered it pretty well."

Members of the Executives Club interrupted Nixon's statements with frequent applause in a ballroom at the Conrad Hilton Hotel. On the street outside the hotel, vocal and mostly youthful critics of the President drowned out a smaller group of Nixon supporters with such chants as "Jail to the Chief."

One questioner asked Nixon if he would appear at criminal trials of present Watergate defendants if his testimony was needed to help his former aides and close associates. The President responded that he thought it would be inappropriate for the President to be jumping into the witness box in federal trials.

While pledging cooperation up to a point with the Judiciary Committee, Nixon argued he has already provided the panel with unprecedented amounts of evidence, and said, "the committee should first examine what it has" before seeking any further tapes or documents.

Communications Controls Lifted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's vast communications industry has been freed from government price controls in a decision that may mean higher charges for newspapers, books, magazines and printed and broadcast advertising.

The sweeping exemption granted by the Cost of Living Council Friday also relieves communications employees from wage controls, with the lone exception of the newspaper industry.

Newspaper employees are still subject to wage controls because "some important collective bargaining agreements are in the process of negotiations," the council said.

Council director John T. Dunlop said the agency was referring to negotiations between several unions and New York newspapers, where pattern-setting wage increases could be at stake. Printers and the newspapers are engaged in a dispute over automation.

The council said it hopes an exemption for newspaper employees can be granted soon.

The Nixon administration wants mandatory wage-price controls to expire over most of the economy by April 30, except in the health and petroleum industries.

The exemption applies to printing, publishing and allied industries; radio and television broadcasting; communication services; advertising; mailing, reproduction, commercial art, photography and stenographic services; news syndicates; photofinishing laboratories and public relations services.

According to the council, these industries include about 72,000 firms and account for $59.5 billion in revenues with more than 576,000 employees. Some are already free of controls because of the small-business exemption.

"Price increases during the period of controls have been relatively moderate," council deputy director James W. McLane said. "The council expects this pattern of moderate price increases to continue after decontrol."

Price increases may be highest in the commercial printing industry, the council said.

Oil Ministers Ponder Prices, Set Announcement

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Ministers from the world's major oil-producing countries met today to discuss raising or lowering the posted price of oil. Delegation heads who talked to reporters said they saw no reason to lower prices.

The regularly scheduled meeting of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum-Exporting Countries (OPEC) came on the eve of an expected announcement by Arab oil producers formally lifting—at least temporarily—the oil embargo against the United States.

Algerian Oil Minister Belaid Abdesslem was asked as he entered the conference room at OPEC headquarters if oil prices would be lowered at the meeting.

"I would prefer to discuss increased prices," he responded.

The new Venezuelan minister for mining and hydrocarbon, Valentin Hernandez Acosta, said the factors that brought the posted price of oil up to its present rate of about $11.65 a barrel "have not yet been removed." He apparently was referring to continuing inflation in Western industrialized countries where the oil producers get most of their manufactured goods.

The Arab ministers reportedly decided Wednesday in Tripoli, Libya, to lift the oil ban against the United States. They were expected to debate the issue again in side meetings in Vienna and then make an announcement Sunday.

Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Ahmed Zaki Yamani, told CBS News Friday night that a final decision on lifting the embargo had not yet been made but he had no doubt it would come Sunday. Yamani said production of oil, now 85 per cent of pre-October levels, would be increased.

Saudi Arabia, the controller of the world's biggest known oil reserves, is the key to the boycott. King Faisal is still on record as opposing lifting the ban until Israel gives up all its captured territories, but the Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar quoted Yamani as saying Saudi Arabia had changed its stand "in appreciation of the first real American change toward the Arabs."

Yamani told the paper the Arabs reserve the right to resume the embargo if no disengagement of Israeli and Syrian forces occurs. The Cairo paper Akhbar El Youm quoted official Kuwait sources as saying the embargo could resume in two months if a disengagement did not take place.

OPEC members are Venezuela, Ecuador, Iran, Nigeria, Indonesia, Gabon, Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Kuwait, Qatar, the United Arab Emirates, Libya and Algeria. The Arab oil producers' separate group—the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries (OAPEC)—includes the seven Arab OPEC members plus Egypt, Syria and Bahrain.

The current price of oil is $11.65 per barrel for light Arab crude, and varies slightly in other areas. Rumors of price hikes have recently been counterbalanced by unconfirmed reports that a "freeze" on the price of oil, in effect until April 1, may be extended for another three months.

Ohioans Hear Election Candidates

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Republican U.S. Senate candidate said Friday that severe punishment and education of the young is the cure for kidnapping.

Peter A. Voss of Canton, speaking at a Republican dinner in Wilmington Friday night, said the young must be taught the sanctity of private property, emphasizing that the rich are entitled to keep what is theirs just as the poor.

He said punishment for kidnappers should be severe and receive as much publicity as the crime itself.

Voss said he was replying to a Harvard Law School professor who proposed kidnappers be given $5,000, a half hour of free television time and

Streaking Craze Goes Interstate

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP)—Six men staged one of the first interstate streaks here early today, dashing across the Ohio River from Kentucky to Ohio on the U.S. 23 bridge.

The streakers, described by startled toll collectors as five young men and an older man with a beard, made their crossing shortly before 2 a.m.

None stopped to pay the 10-cent pedestrian toll, collectors said.

Man And Wife Run For Offices

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Democrat Thomas Todd and his wife Barbara, a Republican, may make the 1974 election a family affair.

The Todds said Friday that each is thinking about running for statewide office—he for Education Commissioner and she for the Public Service Commission.

"We'd only have to print one card to give out, 'His' on one side and 'Hers' on the other," he said.

do," said a spokesman for the department's Mine Enforcement Safety Administration.

MESA chief James M. Day's finding that there was no legal way to amend the 1969 Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act to permit continued operation of the mines was upheld by Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton.

Sources said Morton feared that if the rules were changed and there was a future disaster "he (Morton) would be the guy to catch hell."

The four-year-old law gave small mine operators until March 30, 1974, to comply with federal standards requiring installation of explosion-proof machinery.

The affected mines, mostly small independent operations located in Appalachia, produce about 30 million tons of coal a year. Officials estimated that 5,000 to 6,000 miners will lose their jobs as a result of the forced closings.

With the Nixon administration already predicting a possible 20-million-ton shortfall of coal this year, the FEO urged MESA either to defer compliance with the closure provisions or to amend the rules to permit only partial compliance.

A MESA spokesman said officials were considering granting extensions to operators who could demonstrate an effort to comply, but that no decision would be made for several days.

"We were not trying to interfere with MESA," said a FEO spokesman. "We simply tried to encourage anything that could be done to benefit production without affecting the safety of the miners."

John L. Kilcullen, a Washington attorney representing the National Independent Coal Operators Association, said it "would be absolutely foolish" for small mine operators to spend the money necessary to comply with the law.

"Most of the operators don't have the coal reserves to warrant an investment of $400,000 that is needed to purchase the required equipment," he said.

Parochial Ruling Eyed This Summer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The American Civil Liberties Union said Friday it expects a decision in early summer on its federal court lawsuit challenging the state's right to provide auxiliary services to non-public schools.

The three-judge U.S. District Court panel heard final arguments in the case Friday.

The ACLU claims the auxiliary services provision of Ohio law is a ruse to get around other court opinions that state aid to parochial schools is unconstitutional.

Proponents of the law contend it does not violate previous court decisions.

Ohio is budgeting about $81.4 million every two years, an average of $155 per non-public school pupil, to provide help for financially-troubled parochial school systems.

The funds to be distributed by local public school districts for projects and materials for use by all schools and in the hiring of personnel such as hearing and speech therapists, who serve both public and private institutions.

Courts earlier struck down laws to provide direct grants to parents of non-public school pupils and to provide a $90 a per student tax credit to parents.

Snow, rain and thundershowers spread over the northern tier of states and into the East today as cold temperatures pushed toward the Gulf region.

Light snow dusted North Dakota and snow and some freezing drizzle glazed parts of Minnesota. Snow also whitened areas from the lower Great Lakes region into southern Michigan.

Rain fell into much of the Ohio Valley and thundershowers were scattered from Tennessee south to the Gulf coast and over the lower Mississippi Valley.

Two inches of snow covered the ground at Muskegon, Mich., and Bradford, Pa., while an inch blanketed Grand Rapids, Mich., and Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Dense fog shrouded parts of southeastern Texas and southwestern Louisiana making driving hazardous. Almost 2 inches of rain was measured at Boothville, La., and more than an inch at New Orleans.

Tips For The New Vegetable Gardeners

By GOERGE HAMRICK

County Extension Agent

Agriculture

So you're thinking of producing your own vegetables this year. Not a bad idea, considering the continuing high increases in cost of living. And, you can eat better on less money, if you scout around for the right information on how to do it. You might start by getting a copy of Bulletin 287, Home Vegetable Gardening, from your local County Extension Office.

Growing vegetables is not simply turning over the sod in your backyard and planting some seeds. If this is your plan, better spend your money at the corner grocery and bring your vegetables home in a paper bag.

According to Jim Utzinger, Extension Horticulturist at The Ohio State University, you'll need fertile, well-drained soil of a loamy texture. Since many "new" gardeners might not have fertile, loamy soil (most of us are victims of basement clay spread over our yards), the next best thing is to work in a lot of soil conditioners such as peat moss, compost, sawdust or other available organic matter. This aspect of garden preparation must not be overlooked, says Utzinger.

Of course, while you're waiting for spring is a good time to sketch out a garden plan. Bulletin 287 will help you do this. Include in the plan the kind and amount of vegetables to be planted, crop planting dates, planting locations (within the garden), and spacing between rows. Such planning provides for the desired amount of each vegetable and aids the gardener in buying the proper amount of seed and plants.

You'll need a shovel and a lot of muscle, if you don't have a power tiller, just to spade up the soil and mix in the organic matter. After you have the soil well-prepared (ready to plant), you might get by with a hoe and other incidentals available around the house such as your wheelbarrow, stakes, water hose, string-insecticides, etc.

Fertilizer may not be easily found, and you'll need a good complete fertilizer. By that we mean one that contains the three primary plant nutrients—nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium. Examples are 8-16-16 or 5-10-10 or 12-12-12. There are others. Don't make the mistake of using lawn fertilizers that may contain weed killers or extremely high nitrogen content, formulated especially for lawns.

For the newcomer to backyard gardening, there's a lot to learn, so don't waste the next month—start collecting information now and prepare yourself to be a good gardener; otherwise you'll be a disappointed statistic.

tours of cycle shops were discussed.

Mrs. Karshner served refreshments.

Dues will be $2. Officers will be elected at the next meeting to be held at the Wayne Twp. meeting house, March 20, 1974, at 7:30 p.m.

There will be two ten-county training meetings held for persons interested in small animals or dog projects.

Laurel Oaks Vocational School near Wilmington, will be the location on Thursday, March 21, beginning at 7:30 p.m., for a Small Animal and Dog Training Clinic.

The Small Animal Clinic has been designed for 4-H members, parents, and advisors and other interested persons.

Projects being covered include rabbits, caveys, gerbils, hamsters, and other pocket pets. Areas to be covered include housing and care, breeds and breeding, feeding and nutrition, disease and treatment, and exhibiting and show procedures.

The Dog Clinic has actually been scheduled for two nights—March 21 and 28—but unlike the Small Animal Clinic, this program has been designed primarily for adults-including advisors, parents, members of kennel clubs, or other interested persons.

March 21 will find such topics as philosophy of 4-H dog training, resource materials available, conditioning and grooming, the pilot dog program, and how to organize a 4-H dog club, covered. On March 28, the entire evening will be devoted to obedience training, including sub-novice, novice, graduate-novice and open. Participants may bring their dogs if they so desire.

A special feature for this night will be a drill team presentation by the Licking County Kennel Club. This group featured recently in Dog World Magazine is a widely sought-after group, and they have appeared on TV and at many public events.

If you plan to attend either session, please contact the County Extension Office. One of the reasons for scheduling both sessions on the same night, was to provide the opportunity for car pools due to the current energy situation.

The Stylish Stitchers 4-H club will hold their organization meeting for the year on March 19, at 7:30 p.m., at the home of Mrs. Barbara Derflinger, Route 2, Plazier Road, Ashville, Ohio. All girls wishing to join this club should attend this organizational meeting.

County 4-H Club News

THE CLOVERETTES

The first meeting of our club was held at the Lutheran Parish Hall on March 7th. Mrs. Freda Willis was introduced as a new leader. Eight members were present.

Project books were passed out and discussed. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Carle.

All members are urged to be present at the next meeting to be held in the home of Robbye Willis, 212 Mingo St., March 21, 1974, at 7 p.m. Election of officers will be held.

ROUGH RIDERS

The 4-H Rough Riders Club is one of the oldest horse clubs in the County. Through the years they have won their share of horsemanship and showmanship classes. However we feel there is more to 4-H than just winning so we were the first in the state of Ohio with a 4-H Rodeo event. This event we felt was a place for a boy or girl to compete in events that he or she has the ability for. However some of the rodeo events have been discontinued due to inadequate facilities. We would like to bring these events back. Since the competition in the rodeo isn't so keen the boys and girls have a lot of fun together. The combined 4-H club horse clubs have agreed to work together toward money making projects for the much needed improvements on arena, paddock, fencing, dressing rooms, etc. Any help from civic organizations will be appreciated.

FUTURE FARMERS OF MONROE

4-H is both rewarding for the members and the community. The Future Farmers of Monroe 4-H club have community projects every year. Shown are some of the members as they pick up litter at Deer Creek Reservoir. The reservoir is almost in their own back yard. The members pack their lunch and enjoy a day together. They do this community project so that other people can enjoy the clean grounds and road ways to the park and fishing facilities.

The Future Farmers of Monroe have done other community projects. Some of these are painting mailboxes, putting up American flags and working on the loading docks at the Pickaway Fair grounds, and painting trash barrels for the fair and Monroe Elementary School.

The Future Farmers are a united group, which can be proven by the fact that they have been in existence for 52 years and that they have been an honor club for the past several years. They always try to accomplish their goals. While doing projects to help others, they always have fun themselves.

DEERCREEK BUSY BEES

The Deercreek Busy Bees are busy indeed, already organizing and planning projects. They decided to have two groups, meeting at different times, because they have such a growing membership. They elected two sets of officers, but will still be considered one club. The third through sixth grade officers are: Kelly McCafferty, president; Stephanie Snyder, vice president; Kristi Lane, secretary; Tracy Stonerock, treasurer; Jerri Kaiser, reporter; and Veronica Carter, recreation.

The junior and senior high officers elected are: Connie Drummond, president; Cindy Hamman, vice president; Susan Hillman, secretary; Nancy Schein, treasurer; Dawn Hawks, health; Lori Hulse, safety; Dee Ann Clark, reporter; Jo Carol Hawks, photography; Cathy Schleich and Crystal Metzger, recreation leaders.

The Busy Bees are choosing a wide variety of projects and are advised by Mrs. Mary Alice Schein, Mrs. Marsha Horch, Mrs. Nancy Snyder, Mrs. Pat Metzger, Mrs. Jeannie Hamman, Mrs. Clarabelle Valentine, and Mrs. Glenn Wisecup.

JUNIOR PILOTS

Last year a new club was added to the local 4-H program. This new club was named the Junior Pilots.

The Junior Pilots consisted of a crew of fourteen with all members completing the 1973 4-H year. The Junior Pilots did not consist of all boys as one might expect; it also included one girl named Kim Walker. Kim was able to compete with the boys and took first place honors in the Aerospace Program.

Members of the club learned about aviation and flight principles by building model airplanes. These models were then displayed at the fair. All members learned what makes the aircraft fly, control surfaces and their function, forces that work upon the aircraft in flight and finally construction of the model chosen for exhibit. Knowledge of the aircraft was demonstrated to Sgt. Sutton, an Air Force Representative, 4-H judge, and pilot.

All meetings were held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Walker, adviser and co-adviser. Mr. Walker is a licensed commercial pilot and holds an instrument rating.

David Sutton, President, and his co-officers accomplished a very good first year. This year we hope to be as successful and plan to visit the Air Force Museum, Lockbourne Air Force Base and possibly tour the facilities of Port Columbus Airport.

DOG IN MY LIFE

The Dog in My Life 4-H club is now 3 years old. In this club we have boys and girls and dogs of all sizes and shapes and different personalities. Our goals are to learn obedience (both dog and master) and to learn sportsmanship, how to be fair and to treat everyone as equals and most of all how to help each other. The boys and girls have taken part in 4-H camp and the county fair. They also participated in the 4-H camp and the county fair. They also participated in the Ashville 4th of July parade. They traveled to Columbus to the K-9 Kennel Club for a demonstration on training guard dogs. They are going to Columbus to observe Columbus All Breed Training Club members train the obedience classes they offer.

We have recreation, take part in Heart Fund Drives and our leader worked with the Jerry Lewis Telethon in our name. We have money making projects and in general we enjoy our club. We meet every Thursday, at 7:00 p.m., in Ashville Elementary School.

If you are 10 or older and still want to join call 983-2567. We still have a couple of openings. Keep in mind 4-H is for the kids by the kids. Leaders are to guide and teach and to offer assistance only when needed. If you are interested, give us a try. You'll like it.

RED CROSS 4-H CLUB

We all want to be good neighbors. Several young people have taken a step toward this goal. They are helping to organize a Red Cross 4-H club, Good Neighbors. They are planning their program and have many exciting suggestions.

We hope to have guest speakers on nutrition, drug abuse, hypnosis, public health. Our field trips will take us to Chillicothe Medical Center, Veteran's Hospital, Holzer Hospital, Children's Hospital and Athens Mental Health Center.

Spring Is Time To Seed Alfalfa

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent
Agriculture

Spring seeding alfalfa alone can increase plant survival and stand vigor, says Donald K. Myers, Extension Agronomist at The Ohio State University.

Traditionally, alfalfa in Ohio has been spring seeded with a small grain such as oats or winter wheat. These grains compete with the alfalfa for light, moisture, and soil nutrients. They also provide suitable conditions for alfalfa seedling disease.

Myers suggests using forage herbicides to control weeds in alfalfa seeded alone. He says yields of up to 3 tons or more the year of seeding have been harvested in Ohio from this program. Soil and air temperatures and soil moisture during late March and early April are ideal for quick germination and rapid seedling growth of alfalfa, he claims.

Further details are available in the Ohio Agronomy Guide, Bulletin 472, available at the County Extension Service Office.

Alert Game Plan Helps Beat Weeds

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent
Agriculture

If your farm provides an annual playing field for the battle of corn or soybeans vs weeds, now is the time to plan some game strategy, says Edward W. Stroube, Extension Agronomist at The Ohio State University. With the proper game plan, equipment and timing, you can help your crops win the contest against weeds, he claims.

Weeds compete with crop plants for nutrients, especially nitrogen, the specialist says. If you can apply only the minimum amount of nitrogen for corn production, as may be the case in 1974, you'll have a much greater need for good weed control.

Game strategy to control weeds may include various tillage practices or the use of herbicides (weed-killing chemicals). In most situations, Stroube explains, a combination of tillage and herbicides offers the best chance for victory.

If you are going to plant corn with absolutely no tillage - no plowing or use of any tillage tool - you must accomplish weed control completely with herbicides. There are good herbicides for the various weed and vegetation situations. The Ohio Agronomy Guide, Cooperative Extension Service Bulletin 472, contains specific recommendations and is available at the County Extension Office.

If the fuel shortage or the yield advantage of planting on time make it advisable to use a reduced tillage system, you will need different weed control methods than you would need with conventional tillage. In both corn and soybean production, if something less than a well-prepared seedbed is to be used, it is essential that you kill, at crop planting time, weeds that survive the reduced tillage.

Stroube claims it is virtually impossible to control weed seedlings after the crop is up. This is especially true of grassy weeds. Therefore, he recommends the use of a contact herbicide such as Paraquat at planting time to kill weed seedlings that are present. Also use a soil-applied herbicide, selected to be used on the basis of weed species and crop rotation.

Herbicides applied before or soon after application (pre-emergence) don't always result in complete control of weeds, says Stroube. It is important to use followup control measures on time. Do not delay and allow the escaped weeds to smother the crop before you take action. Use appropriate tillage practices or post-emergence herbicide application.

There is a selection of good post-emergence treatment for corn, but the selection is somewhat limited for soybeans.

Supplies of most herbicides will be adequate, Stroube believes, but some materials will be short. Determine your herbicide needs as accurately as possible based on your acreage of corn and soybeans, your planned tillage systems, your specific weed problems, and your crop rotation plan. Then place your order for these herbicides.

You must apply herbicides accurately and at the right time, the specialist warns. If you don't have good equipment, rebuild it, replace it, or consider a custom applicator. But if you are to have your herbicide custom applied, be sure the applicator is reliable in the correct application of materials and that he will be available when you need him. A custom applicator two or three weeks late is worse than none at all.

Don't let weeds win the battle against your profit. Plan now to help your corn or soybeans win this summer's game, soon to start on your playing fields.

March 28 is going to be a busy day according to my calendar! The latest addition (after the Sr. Citizens Diabetes Test and the High-Fever Follies) is an Energy Crisis Seminar, to be held from 9:30 a.m. - 2:30 p.m. It will be at the Electric Company in Columbus. I will be leaving at 8:45 a.m. on that morning and will return by around 3 p.m. Anyone wanting to go with me to this Seminar may pre-register for one dollar at the office before March 20.

The program speakers are from Battelle Institute, Ohio State University, the American Home Appliance Manufacturers, and the Ohio Energy Institute. There is a free lunch served. If you are interested, I'd love to have you accompany me.

I've had some questions on Vitamin E lately. In a Columbus paper, I even saw a dumb ad where you can send for Vitamin E pills and diet for a high price. Uninformed advocates of Vitamin E claim it will cure heart at-

Dairy Indemnity Extended To '77

Dairy farmers should be aware that the effective date of the Dairy Indemnity Program has been extended to June 30, 1977.

Dairy farmers are reminded that the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service located at 1440 N. Court St., will assist them in the event of a milk loss because of pesticide residue.

More Corn Planting Set By Ohio Farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio farmers intend to plant more corn and fewer soybeans this spring, according to Agriculture Department figures released Thursday.

The Crop Reporting Board said surveys March 1 showed farmers will plant 3,800,000 acres of corn, a 15 per cent increase over last year.

At the same time, the board said, they will plant 3,330,000 acres of soybeans, an 8 per cent drop from 1973.

Weather Odds

Many are the jokes about the housewife who listened to the latest reports from the U.S. Weather Bureau, then went outside to see for herself whether it looked safe to hang out the wash. But the fact remains weather forecasters have always been touchy about the sometimes calamitous turn of events following their pronouncements.

Part of the trouble, of course, lies in the fact that man does not know enough about the weather phenomenon in particular, and nature in general, to be more than reasonably accurate in dealings with it.

On most days, the Weather Service piles weather histories in a computer and compares current data with past experience. Thus, if in the last 100 cases of weather conditions identical to those existing today it rained on 30 of the days, the forecaster announces there is a 30 per cent chance of rain.

From that point on, you are on your own. And the weatherman is off the hook.

Hymoff Praise For OSS

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—There must be a dozen exciting movies and TV dramas in Edward Hymoff's "The OSS in World War II" (Ballantine). OSS, the Office of Strategic Services, America's first wartime espionage organization overseas, was the forerunner of today's CIA (Central Intelligence Agency). It was commanded by Gen. "Wild Bill" Donovan. It had no splendid headquarters outside Washington, D.C., wasn't nearly as well-heeled and scientifically trained, and got itself in and out of memorable situations that had their good and bad effects in war and the peace that followed.

Ed Hymoff, formerly of International News Service, was part of OSS. He operated behind German lines in the Balkans at a time when the OSS was described by Radio Berlin as "fifty professors, twenty monkeys, ten goats, twelve guinea pigs and a staff of Jewish scribblers."

It was something more.

OSS agents were in the opium business in some cases, Hymoff writes. Operatives, dropped surreptitiously into Burma by chute, carried silver coins and drugs for Burmese tribal guerrillas who were fighting or gathering information about the Japanese invaders.

"If there were any moral considerations they were overcome by the realities of war and military operations, Hymoff writes. "Opium would give OSS buying power. Going into the opium business was not questioned, once the decision was made. This buying power purchased the services of the Kachin tribesmen who made life hellish for the Japanese Army."

In China, the OSS utilized the services of major opium dealers as conduits for information passed out of Japanese-occupied areas. Hymoff adds that his own personal observation of the use of narcotics in the waging of actual and subtle war quickened while serving as a correspondent in the French war in Indochina, leading up to the rout of the French at Dienbienphu. Back in that part of the world to cover the disastrous U.S. investment, Hymoff noted on a trip to northeast Thailand countless acres of poppies being harvested by mountain tribesmen. He was at that time writing the first of four books on celebrated U.S. divisions serving in Vietnam and their past exploits: (First Marine, First Air Cav., Fourth Infantry and First Marine Aircraft Wing).

It didn't use up much of Ed's reportorial know-how to fit together the harvest of the poppies in Thailand and the rising incidence of addiction among the American troops he was writing about in Vietnam. He was one of the first to bring this off-shoot of a hopeless war to the attention of the proper military authorities, and must be considered among the founding fathers of the therapy program which we reluctantly began near the end of that war.

In 1971, Hymoff uncovered the unpleasant history of OSS World War II

collaboration with the Corsican underworld, which had learned much of its narcotics trafficking techniques while smuggling arms and ammo to the French underground. Many of the Corsicans had been trained by OSS agents. A quarter of a century later, they or their families were still in business, but by then their chief customers were the heroin addicts of the United States.

OSS agents had a fine rapport with Ho Chi Minh — and OSS medic saved his life — during the Japanese occupation of Indochina. . . . British intelligence first viewed the OSS as an upstart amateur group, later marveled at the exploits of its agents, finally didn't like it one little bit. . . . Soviet spies, learning of scheduled OSS jumps into Czechoslovakia, caused the deaths of 20 OSS men, though we were ostensible allies at the time. . . . but the secret Balkans air force, which included two Soviet squadrons based in Italy, were at the same time flying supplies to OSS agents behind enemy lines.

The reader may be startled by the long-gone adventures of former OSS men. John M. Shaheen, now a prominent figure in international petroleum and soon to be a New York newspaper publisher, played an active role in the surrender of Italy while with the OSS with the rank Navy Lieutenant. On the staff of his complex but eventually successful "McGregor Project" were such junior operators as Mike Burke, former president of the New York Yankees and now president of Madison Square Garden, John Ringling North, who ran our biggest circus, and Joe Savoldi, the Notre Dame All-America back who died only recently.

The late Moe Berg, big league baseball catcher and all-but-incredible linguist, was an OSSman. I always thought that he was assigned to outrageously dangerous OSS work in Germany to kill, as quietly as possible, German physicists working on Hitler's atomic bomb. But whenever I'd ask him, point-blank, Moe would simply smile and put his forefinger to his lips.

Whatever, get a load of "The OSS in World War II." It's pure and unadulterated Bill Holden — but for real.

Portuguese Military Chiefs Ousted In Colonies Dispute

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Premier Marcel Caetano has apparently ruled out major concessions to rebels in Portugal's African territories by replacing the chief of staff of the armed forces with a hard-line hawk.

The government announced early today that Gen. Francisco Costa de Gomes, the chief of staff, and his controversial deputy, Gen. Antonio de Spínola, had been ousted after failing to appear at a meeting with more than 100 other officers to give a public pledge of loyalty to the government. The government put the armed forces on the alert and confined them to barracks for the second time in a week, apparently in fear of adverse reaction from younger officers.

Gomes was replaced by Gen. Joaqui de Luz Cunha, the military commander in Angola, who is regarded as a firm supporter of the war against the native rebels in Angola, Mozambique and Portuguese Guinea.

Spínola's office, which was created for him when he returned a hero from duty in Portuguese Guinea, was abolished.

The situation apparently resulted from Spínola's publication of a book in which he said that military victory against the African rebels could not be won. He advocated a political solution, and Gomes apparently agreed with him.

The armed forces were confined to barracks for three days last weekend, and officials attributed this to a matter of "internal discipline." Some sources said the younger officers were restive about their pay and chances of promotion, but the unrest was widely linked to Spínola's book, "Portugal and the Future."

Both Caetano and President Americo Thomaz have declared that Portugal must fight the rebels and remain in Africa at all costs. Caetano has claimed that the rebels are agents of Moscow and Peking and would expel all the whites if they were victorious.

Pastore Blasts Nixon Campaign Reform Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., said today the most serious defect in President Nixon's campaign reform proposals was his opposition to public financing.

"Public funds for the public campaigns of public officials make good sense if we want to end political payola," Pastore said.

He called the Watergate scandals "conclusive proof that the present system of private financing breeds corruption."

Pastore spoke on all major radio networks as the spokesman for the Democratic Congress in reply to the proposals Nixon advanced a week ago in his message to Congress and on a nationwide broadcast.

"Let us not be misled by those who claim that public financing is taxation without representation and a raid on the federal treasury," Pastore said.

When Bread Is Rising

DES MOINES (AP) — The editor of one of the nation's leading farm publications says that wheat prices shouldn't be blamed for the rising price of bread.

Al Bull, writing in Wallace's Farmer, says, "Wheat in a loaf of bread usually is less than one pound. So even $5 wheat, which no miller has had to pay yet, amounts to only eight cents per loaf."

"That's still a small part of the total price, so don't buy wheat price as the real reason for increases in price of bread," he says.

In a letter released Thursday, Solzhenitsyn said that "having been forcibly torn from my native soil I am compelled to spend now much spiritual and physical energy to recuperate and resume my work in a new place at my previous level and tempo."

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Osteoporosis is a condition of the bone in which there is marked softening because of the absorption of calcium.

It is a frequently distressing condition, noted especially after the onset of the menopause, and its control has captured the attention of physicians and scientists.

Female hormones, vitamins, calcium, and phosphorus are used to increase the density of the bone and relieve the pain that may be associated with osteoporosis.

Now the chemical fluoride is being used for this purpose by Dr. Roy E. Beauchene, at the University of Tennessee. He and his colleagues, using fluoride alone, have found that it is even more effective than when given in combination with other supplements.

This may well be a significant contribution to the prevention and control of a condition that so universally plagues many middle-aged women.

A fascinating study has just been reported about a method to make wounds heal more quickly.

Dr. Bert Myers, of the New Orleans Veterans Administration Hospital, has been using epinephrine, a substance produced by the adrenal gland, to help the process of wound healing.

In the experimental animals used, the strength of the surgical wounds was found to be increased and the healing time shortened.

Epinephrine, chemically similar to adrenalin, is injected into the area of the incision. The exact mechanism of healing that follows is not yet completely understood, from a scientific point of view, but Dr. Myers says, "It works."

Wound-healing by this method will undoubtedly be applied to humans if the promise of its advantages is substantiated.

At the Indiana University Medical Center, a new operation for club foot is being used with excellent results.

Dr. J. W. Riley and Dr. F. B. Throop have modified a technique originally designed by Dr. Owen Murphy of Lexington, Ky.

The operation is a complicated one but brings excellent results in carefully selected cases.

Percy Disagrees With Nixon Stand

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said President Nixon would be wrong to block the House Judiciary Committee's quest for further presidential material, and added that full disclosure would be the President's best defense.

Percy disagreed Friday with Mr. Nixon's Chicago statement that the committee had no right to seek further material from the White House.

He said the President was "wrong to try to block the committee from obtaining further material."

He said the committee should receive any specific document it sought, but should not go on a fishing expedition, or have a license to go over to the White House and "poke through the files."

"The best way to protect future presidents is to protect this President," Percy said, "and the way to protect this President is to produce the documents that will show his innocence."

Percy, here to address the 20th annual Conference of the Cincinnati Council on World Affairs, attacked France for its "go it alone" policy in recent years, particularly in the oil crisis.

He praised the detente with the Soviet Union but cautioned that Communist leaders must be made to know "that Americans do value freedom, both for individuals and nations."

"We believe in freedom for writers to publish, for dissenters to dissent, for protesters to protest."

He also said citizens of all nations have the right to come and go but did not mention Soviet writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn by name.

"We must be prudent, but we must not abandon the effort to reduce East-West tensions," he said.

Percy said European nations must be made to defray the cost of maintaining troops in Europe but said a reduction of troops through negotiation with the Soviet Union would be helpful.

"France has clearly sought her own advantage with the oil producing states at the expense of her allies in Western Europe and America," he said.

"Similarly, France hampered monetary reform by seeking the return to the gold standard and fixed exchange rates, although she has now floated the franc and presumably acknowledged, at least in this regard and at least to herself, the error of her ways," he said.

Successor To Shultz Won't Wield As Much Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two years after he became the first economist to head the Treasury Department, Secretary George P. Shultz is stepping down. He had become one of the two most powerful men in the administration.

Shultz announced his resignation Thursday, saying it would become effective in early May.

Sources said it was unlikely his successor would be given the same authority he had.

Shultz is to the economy what Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is to international diplomacy, but the Kissinger flair for limelight is not a Shultz trait. His style is to conduct his business quietly and without fanfare.

One aide argued Shultz is the most powerful secretary of the treasury since Alexander Hamilton, the country's first.

In announcing his resignation, Shultz indicated he was tired after five years.

"There is a tendency perhaps to stay too long, in that you don't have the ability to get up to a wide variety of topics as you once were.... the time has come to move on to something else," he said.

President Nixon did not immediately name a successor to Shultz. Federal energy chief William E. Simon still is considered the front-runner for the post, but informed sources say his appointment by no means is certain.

Simon said as much to newsmen who asked him whether he would be named secretary. "I don't think that's a safe assumption at all. I would do whatever the President thinks is in the best interest of the country, but energy is my job," he said.

Shultz, 53, is the last member of the original Nixon cabinet. He started out as secretary of labor in 1969, became first director of the new Office of Management and Budget in 1970 and moved to treasury in June 1972.

He also has the title of assistant to the president and has had almost total authority over the domestic economy and the country's international economic affairs.

Paula Azbell Wins Westfall Spelling Bee

Paula Azbell, a sixth grader at Jackson Elementary School, was the winner of the Westfall District spelling bee. Grades five through eight participated in preliminary contests and eight winners from Jackson, Derby, Monroe and Westfall Junior High schools competed for the district title Friday at the Jackson School.

A county spelling bee will be held in Superintendent Edward Martin's office on March 22, to determine a winner from the three district champions.

Participating as school winners and runners-up in the Westfall contest were Sheri Somers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Somers, Route 1, New Holland; Sherry Knox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Knox, Route 1, Mt. Sterling; Jerri Kaiser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kaiser, 208 Church St., Williamsport; Debbie Stover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Stover, Route 1, Orient; Von Stuckert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Stuckert, Route 3, Orient; Kathy Monett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Monett, Route 2, Orient.

Local Funds Distributed

Circleville and Pickaway County will receive $12,860.80 in Local Government Funds, in what State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson reports as the largest distribution Local Government Fund money in the state's history with $6,908,594.38 going to Ohio's 88 counties.

The money, $2,881,350.94 more than the February distribution, is derived monthly by taking 3.5 per cent of state collections of personal, corporation and sales taxes during the preceding month. Ferguson noted that the March distribution is usually the largest due to the great influx of corporation taxes in that month.

Eleven-twelfths of the amount of money, or $6,332,909.96, was distributed on a formula basis to the 88 county Local Government Funds, while one-twelfth, or $575,684.42 was divided up and sent to the cities and villages collecting local income taxes.

News Of Interest To Women

The Circleville Herald, Saturday March 16, 1974

'Bloomers To Bikinis' Monday Club Program

"Bloomers To Bikinis" was the topic of the program presented by Mrs. William Cox for the recent meeting of Monday Club in Pickaway County Historical Society room.

Mrs. Rex Wood presided over a brief business meeting in the absence of Mrs. Wallace Higgins, president.

In "Don Quixote," Cervantes writes, "Ne'er look for the birds of this year in the nests of the last." Perhaps nothing illustrates this more than the world of fashion. Women, either by their own doing or through manipulation by designers, have long fought against looking like last year's bird!

There is a gap wider than the ocean between young Victorian couples on a picnic, carefully and uncomfortably dressed, even to jackets and neckties on the men and the young men and women at a Rock Festival in the 70's unabashedly bathing together in the buff in a convenient pond. That gap is filled by the Gibson Girl, the Flapper, Bathing Beauties, Rosie the Riveter, Hippies, and Women Libbers to name a few. For fashion does reflect the climate of the times. It has been noted that economic prognosticators who have developed astute intuitions glance at the fashion columns of newspapers almost as regularly as the business pages. They may not like to admit publicly they believe the old adage about business conditions coinciding with the length of skirts, but in their calling, it doesn't hurt to touch all bases.

Ancient Romans thought blonds had more fun. Blond wigs imported from Germany or made from hair of German captives were common says the World Book Encyclopedia. Roman women also dyed their hair as a part of their routine and some went so far as to sprinkle their locks with gold dust in their efforts to disarm a Centurion or two.

Perhaps one of the first boons to fashion in our country came during the gilded age of the 1870's. Machine-loomed fabrics became a reality. It opened up a whole new dimension for the American woman. She no longer had to choose between the coarse homespun or the expensive imported fabrics.

By 1880, America was emerging into the Victorian period. Parlors were decorated to the point of being cluttered; architecture was in the gingerbread period. Modesty was the keynote for behavior.

In 1885, a boy's magazine printed the serial "Little Lord Fautleroy". Immediately, mothers made their sons miserable rigging them out in black velvet suits, lace collars, and love-locks waving.

The 1890's may have more a reputation for gaiety than they deserve, for the decade was not all beer garden and German Bands, strawberry festivals and bicycles built for two. Some were working too hard for too little money. Even so, it was a bustling, energetic, exuberant era. The nation was turning its back on many old ways and setting out on a new course.

Achingly lovely in shirtwaist dresses and pompadoured hair, girls on bicycles were beginning to show a flash of the calf! Illustrator Charles Dana Gibson created the Gibson Girl. Here was beauty, self-assurance, freedom from the old self-subservency of woman to man.

Girls appeared on the beaches in dresses just below the knee with sailor collars and short or no sleeves. Their legs were covered with stockings and ruffled caps perched coquettishly on their heads.

The 20th Century came in fresh as paint and by 1909 had started to roll. Total change took place. The world was intoxicated with its new art, new music, new way of life and new clothes. No dresses had ever been cut like those of these new designers. It was a fashion world of luxury, optimism and gaiety. Some women were daring to smoke cigarettes. In 1904, a woman was arrested in New York City for smoking in the back seat of an automobile.

Paul Poiret, a leading designer in 1909, was freeing the female body. He was annihilating the corset. His ideal woman was a reed, a willow in a high-waisted Grecian or Persian tube-gown. He had a penchant for tassels and called them "tools of coquetry".

The history of bathing suits had been one of less and less. In the Victorian years, a woman hardly enough to enter the water did so completely swaddled in many yards of cloth; pantalettes covered her lower legs and she was expected to wear a corset. By 1913, the pantalettes had been trimmed away and no corsets. In another ten years, the one piece knitted suit would scandalize the beaches and there is no need to detail here what has happened to swimsuits recently.

With the close of World War I, America entered into the Jazz Age, The Flapper Era, The Roaring Twenties. It was during this flamboyant, flirtatious time that Cole Porter began the beguine, Jean Harlow turned platinum into gold, and Clara Bow was the bee's knees. It was a dynamic decade. Soft, floating dresses (often in white), swinging ropes of pearls, deep cloche hats and tiny veils captured female imagination.

In July 1921, the bathing beauty contest was discovered. The contest held in Washington saw the girls wearing hats, tunic suits and stockings. By September of that year it was a different story in Atlantic City. The girls paraded the Boardwalk in tight, one piece suits and bare legs.

Two very important things were happening to fashion in the 30s. Schiaparelli was the first to use the zipper in couture and nylon went into production in 1938 in a modest way. At first it was used as toothbrush bristles but it soon became the yarn and thread that was to gladden female hearts.

In the beginning of the 40s, skirts reached a bit below the knee. Spectator pumps, pageboy hair-dos, reversible raincoats, the classic shirtwaist dress and boleros were popular. Women were delighted with their new nylons which were ever so much longer than silk hosiery.

Rosie the Riveter made it patriotic to wear slacks as she went to work in defense plants across the land. In years to come, that trend would move from the realm of patriotism to one of fashion.

As the decade came to a close, off-shoulder blouses, rolled pedal-pushers and flats were finding their way into wardrobes of younger women. Ankle straps, padded shoulders, pill-box or off-the-face hats and long curly coiffures were part of the fashion scene.

The decade of the 50s has been called the complacent era but with the advent of Sputnik, the complacency was to erupt into the restless years. To many of the younger women, fashion became a dirty word. Long, lank hair, old jackets, ragged faded jeans, sandals or mocassins, no make-up and sometimes no soap—boys and girls alike—became an all too common look. It was no longer fashionable to be in fashion and while they decried conformity, they conformed to their own sloppy attire.

Fashion showed less and less fabric and more and more woman. Mini skirts and hot pants and bikinis became the rule. While men ogled the mini-skirted females and the mini-skirted females heralded their new found freedom, there were those who found it increasingly hard to buy new clothes. In compromise, the designers came up with the pants suits. While they often made us ponder Ogden Nash's line "Have you seen yourself retreating" they did, at least, cover

Missionary Society Elects Officers

Officers for the coming year were elected at the recent meeting of Laurelville Church of God Missionary Society at the church.

Margie Ebert, president, read scripture from the book of Philippians and Josephine Hardman led in prayer. Margie Ebert read a letter concerning the annual WMS board meeting held in Zanesville and a letter of thanks from the Swackhammer family.

Elected were: Alma Radabaugh, vice president; Judy Clifton, secretary; Carol Holbrook, treasurer; Josephine Hardman, director of spiritual life and Bertha Wiggins, director of missionary education.

Each member will be receiving the traveling basket which will find something prepared by one lady and given to another until all have received it.

The society agreed to cook the meal for the annual Laurelville Alumni Banquet to be held May 18.

Members are to think and pray about having an all-day work meeting once a month. Plans were made for a bake sale before Easter.

Josephine Hardman used "Personal Work For Jesus" as her topic for devotions. She also read a poem entitled "So Much For Granted."

Rosemary Picklesimer and Bertha Wiggins served refreshments at the close of the meeting following prayer by Marilyn Fry.

Pumpkin Show Ideas Discussed By Class

Pumpkin Show ideas and projects were discussed during the Friday night meeting of Crusader Sunday School Class, Calvary United Methodist Church, at the home of Helen Abney, 149 W. Mound St.

A bean supper preceded the business meeting conducted by Rosemary Flowers. Cards were signed and sent to Dale DeLong and Marge Ward. It was agreed to order flowers to decorate the church for Easter Sunday.

A planter will be sent to Eloise Dray in honor of the opening of her beauty shop and the class will give $50. to the Easter offering.

Following the meeting pumpkin desserts, made by members, were served.

The next meeting will be hosted by Marvin and Marlene Widmar, and Louis and Maxine Gerlach.

Dinner To Fete 50th Anniversary

The 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John E. McNichols of Laurelville will be celebrated March 24 at the Stump Run Fellowship Building on Stump Run Road, one mile off Route 180.

A basket dinner will be served at 1 p.m. with all friends and relatives invited to the open house.

Miss Wanda V. Swackhammer and John E. McNichols were united in marriage on March 24, 1924. They have resided their entire lives in Hocking and Pickaway Counties.

The couple has seven children, Robert, Merl, Ronald, Herman and Howard McNichols of Laurelville; Mrs. Bertha Glenn of Circleville and Viola Dillie of Laurelville. There are 16 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

the retreat!

And what of tomorrow—will it be bloomers or bikinis? There's an old adage that says history repeats itself. You've come a long way, baby. Are you ready to go back to cotton drawers, bustles, buttonhooks and frizzing irons? Or maybe, just maybe, we'll all soon be fashionably attired in space suits riding that buggy to the moon. In the world of fashion, anything can happen.

'Graduation Day' For Bulls Announced

The Ohio Bull Testing Program will graduate 86 bulls come April 1 and 2. According to W. W. Wharton, Extension Specialist, Animal Science, and chairman of the bull testing project, the bulls will have completed their 140 day test period on these dates.

Local bulls in the state-wide test which are of interest are those owned by G & H Research Farm and Van Camp Charolais Farm, both of Circleville. The G & H Charolais bull has been averaging 3.21 lbs. per day for 112 of the 140 day period and the two Van Camp Charolais bulls have been averaging 3.00 lbs. per day.

The bulls are weighed on two consecutive days, and their weights for each day is averaged. Wharton explained that this procedure gives a truer weight of each bull.

These bulls must meet specific requirements to be eligible for certification. An Ohio Certified bull must have gained 2.25 lbs. per day during the 140 day period. The bull must also have a 2.25 lbs. per day lifetime gain. He also must meet a grade minimum of at least 13.

For the bulls that do exceptionally well, a Superior Certification program is granted. The Ohio Superior Certified bull must have gained 3.00 lbs. per day, have a lifetime gain of 2.50 lbs. and grade at least 14.

On Monday evening, April 8, bulls meeting the certification standards are eligible to sell in the 5th Annual Ohio Performance Tested Bull Sale. John Curtiss, secretary of the Ohio Hereford Association and sale manager, commented that the sale, starting at 6:30 p.m. under the viaduct at the Ohio Exposition Center, will be a bull smorgasbord this year. He stated that 35 of the bulls are of special crosses along with 5 different purebred breed groups. Breeds and combinations include: Angus, Charolais, Hereford, Polled Hereford and Red Poll, Murrey Grey, Chianina, Short-horn, Simmental, Guernsey, Holstein, Jersey, and Brown Swiss.

Professor Wharton urged all cattle breeders interested in production testing to attend an organizational meeting of the new Buckeye Beef Improvement Federation which will be held prior to the sale on April 8. The meeting will be called to order by President Henry Bergfeld at 1 p.m. in the Rhodes Center at the Ohio Exposition Center.

See Record Crops If Weather Holds

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new survey by the Agriculture Department has renewed prospects of record wheat and corn harvests this year if tractors do not run out of fuel and the weather is favorable.

The department said Thursday farmers intend to plant 78.8 million acres of corn this year, a 10 per cent increase from 1973. The new estimate was in line with indications in a preliminary survey made last January.

Although the department's Crop Reporting Board did not include production estimates in Thursday's report, a new analysis based on the March 1 planting survey will be issued today.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Playing Her For A Fool

DEAR ABBY: I don't have any actual proof, but I think my husband is cheating on me.

First he came home smelling of real strong perfume with lipstick on his collar. (He said his boss' wife came in and hugged him "hello," but that was all.)

Another time when he took off his shirt I noticed several long scratches on his back. He swore he didn't know how he got them, but Abby, they were too deep and long for him not to know.

(I think some lady did it with her fingernails.)

Also, he's come home with hickies (love bites) all over his neck, and when I asked him about how he got them he said it must be "hives" from eating strawberries. (Where could he get strawberries now?)

I've quit calling him at work because the guys down there always say: "He just stepped out for a minute," then I hear them laugh.

We've been married for two years and he would like a child, but I'm not sure he'd make a good father. He says he loves me. Should I believe him, or do you think he's playing me for a fool?

DUM DUM

DEAR DUM: If circumstantial evidence could hang a guy, yours has all the rope he needs. First let him prove he can be a good husband before you make him a father.

DEAR ABBY: Should a family alter their lifestyle each time the husband's parents come to visit?

We are in our early thirties, and my husband has been smoking and drinking since his college days, but his parents still don't know it.

When they come, everything of which they disapprove is hidden. This includes coffee, soft drinks, candy, and believe it or not, sugar, cough syrup, and aspirin. We even have to keep our friends away if they are Catholic, Jewish or black.

My husband's parents live 250 miles from us and visit about three times a year, and when I know they're coming I feel like a hypocrite hiding things, and substituting honey for sugar, and ditching some of our friends. What do you think?

WONDERING IN N.C.

DEAR WONDERING: You shouldn't flaunt the contrast in your lifestyles but neither should you alter yours in order to deceive your in-laws. If they don't adjust a little to your way of living, they may stay away from it. And from your description of them, you and your children might be better off.

Gilligan Nixes King Demand On Borsari

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan's office brushed aside Friday a second letter from Frank W. King, president of the Ohio AFL-CIO, asking the dismissal or censure of a state employee.

"It's a closed matter as far as we are concerned," said Robert Tenenbaum, Gilligan's press secretary.

The letter involved an earlier protest from King in which he alleged that Charles Borsari, who formerly worked for King but now is an employee of the Industrial Relations Department, was found in AFL-CIO headquarters last Friday without permission.

Borsari said he obtained permission from Warren Smith, the union's secretary-treasurer, to enter the building to make copies of a book he prepared while employed there. Smith confirmed he had given permission.

However, King, in his letter Friday, insisted Borsari did not have official permission. "At the very least, Mr. Borsari exercised extremely poor judgment when he remained for some time in the building after all other employees had left," he wrote.

King, a frequent political dueler with Gilligan, said he was not satisfied with an investigation into the matter by John E. Hansan, the governor's chief of staff.

"It would seem, under the above circumstances, that he (Borsari) be properly censured or dismissed," the labor leader told Gilligan.

Gilligan said previously that Borsari, "as any other state employee," would be dismissed if found guilty of unethical conduct, and "jailed" if he did anything illegal.

"He hasn't been charged with anything," Tenenbaum said.

Brown charged Friday the firm has violated the state Consumer Sales Practices Act, by failing to include certain required fees totaling $100 in quoted prices.

Economic Loss High In Walkout

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A 2½-week-long strike by some 27,000 coal miners in southern West Virginia cost the industry 3.7 million tons of production, according to the West Virginia Coal Association.

A coal association spokesman estimated direct economic losses at $21 million in salaries, worker benefits and state taxes. He said the strike resulted in a $70 million to $80 million revenue for coal companies.

Meanwhile, about 85 per cent of those participating in the work stoppage were back to work by Friday evening, the spokesman said.

The Pocahontas Fuel Division of Consolidation Coal Co. reported all of its mines were working Friday, and the U.S. Steel Corp. said "about 90 per cent" of its mines were back in operation. Bethlehem Steel Corp. officials reported that its operations were still shut down.

A spokesman for United Mine Workers District 29 in Beckley said about half of the miners in McDowell County—where the strike originated—were back to work.

Jack Perry, president of UMW District 17, said some miners in Kanawha and Boone counties were apparently awaiting a scheduled meeting Sunday before returning to the pits. The miners have been deciding on a week-by-week basis whether to return to work.

The back-to-work movement began Wednesday night after Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr. announced a 30-day suspension of his order that motorists with more than a quarter-tank of gasoline left not be allowed to buy more gas. The quarter-tank rule had been of prime concern to the striking miners who drive long distances to and from work.

In court action Friday, seven McDowell County miners alleged by authorities to have been leaders in picketing activities were handed sentences and fines.

But three hours after the seven were placed in jail, McDowell Circuit Judge Jack Marinari suspended their sentences and gave them 120 days to pay their fines. There was no explanation of his decision to suspend the sentences.

Ellis England, who received a suspended six month sentence, was fined $500. Receiving suspended 30 day sentences and fined $250 were Gary Morgan, Capels; Thomas Craft, Maitland; Roger England, Capels; Lloyd Felts, Capels; and William Stevenson Jr. and Lewis Pierce, both of Welch.

U.S. District Judge Dennis R. Knapp extended for 10 days a temporary restraining order prohibiting picketing in District 17 and part of District 29.

Knapp said he hoped by the time to order expired the situation would be resolved and "we won't have to pursue it any further."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes has called for a single federal agency to take the red tape out of job training programs.

Rhodes told the National Advisory Council on Vocational Education Friday the agency would direct the four component parts of job training: manpower training, vocational education, adult education and technical education.

Rhodes, who is chairman of the council, said the consolidation would save up to $100 million.

Twins Lose Again; Now 0-9

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Minnesota Twins aren't seeing double...or even single...these days. Every other major league baseball team has at least two exhibition victories to its credit, but the Twins are still looking for that elusive No. 1. Friday's 5-0 loss to the St. Louis Cardinals made it nine times in a row the Twins have come out on the short end of the stick.

"I'm not happy with the way we're playing," understated Manager Frank Quilici, trying hard to console himself with the fact that the Twins, like all other clubs, will be 0-0 on opening day. "I'd like to see us start to execute and make the plays we're supposed to make," he continued. "We spent five of our first seven days on the road and it's tough to get your work under those conditions. Now that we'll be home for a few days we'll have a chance to work on fundamentals."

If anyone's having more trouble than the Twins, it's Steve Blass of the Pittsburgh Pirates. The 1971 World Series pitching hero walked 10 batters in four hitters in the Bucs' 6-4 loss to the Atlanta Braves.

Ken Brett and Blass held the Braves hitless until the seventh inning when Hank Aaron got a single. However, Blass had walked two runs home in the sixth. Mike Lum then tagged him for a three-run homer in the seventh to snap a 3-3 deadlock.

Elsewhere, Mark Bombardier allowed one hit in five innings and Juan Marichal made a successful debut with Boston in the Red Sox' 3-1 triumph over the New York Mets. Marichal yielded the Mets' run but surrendered only two hits in three innings.

A couple of rookie pitchers—San Diego's Dave Freisleben and Cincinnati's Tom Carroll—didn't fare too well.

Freisleben, the leading hurler in the Pacific Coast League last year, was charged with six runs in one inning-plus and left the Padres' 14-3 rout at the hands of the San Francisco Giants complaining of a sore shoulder. Ed Goodson led the Giants' attack with two singles, a homer and three RBI.

Tommy Davis' bases-loaded triple highlighted Baltimore's seven-run explosion in the sixth inning against Carroll, who was making his spring debut, and helped the Orioles beat the Reds 10-9. Carroll also gave up a two-run homer to Paul Blair in the fifth.

Ex-Dodger Willie Davis opened the bottom of the ninth inning with a triple and Ken Singleton homered on rookie Eddie Solomon's next pitch, giving the Montreal Expos a 4-3 victory over Los Angeles.

Rookie Cliff Johnson lashed two singles, a double and a home run in leading the Houston Astros past the Detroit Tigers 6-1.

In other games Milwaukee beat Oakland 9-6 Cleveland shut out California 2-0, the New York Yankees beat the Texas Rangers' 'B' squad 5-2 while the Rangers' main unit beat Kansas City 9-8, and the Chicago Cubs defeated Arizona State University 10-7.

24 Teams In Cage Regionals

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Five former state champions, headed by seven-time winner Middletown, lead 24 high schools into regional tournament basketball title games today around Ohio.

Middletown, with its seven crowns, has won three more than the four other ex-champions combined and Paul Walker, the fabled Middies mentor, isn't slowing up any.

"I sure would like to get to the state tournament one more time," drawled Kentucky native Walker while scouting Columbus Regional teams Friday night.

If Middletown can stop defending champion Cincinnati Elder in the Dayton Regional, the Middies will take on the Columbus Regional king in a state semifinal game next week.

Middletown won state titles in 1944,

1946, 1947, 1952, 1953, 1956 and 1957, the last five under Walker, who has 650 career coaching victories.

Elder won its only championship last winter. Mount Vernon, which nipped Celina 60-59 Friday night, is the other former big school champion still going. Mount Vernon won the 1922 crown.

There are no former titlwinners left in Class AA, while defending champion Marion Pleasant and 1972 kingpin Gnadenhutten Indian Valley are among the Class A survivors.

The 12 winners in the regional title games will form the semifinals for the three divisions next week in the 52nd state tournament at Ohio State University.

In Class AAA regional finales, Middletown, 20-3, plays Elder, 20-3, at Dayton, Lorain King 19-4, faces Toledo Scott, 21-2, at Kent, No. 1 ranked Canton McKinley, 23-0, draws Boardman, 22-1, at Canton and Columbus Brookhaven, 14-8, and Mount Vernon, 18-4, battle at Columbus.

In Class AA, it's Akron Manchester, 23-0, against Twinsburg Chamberlain, 22-1, at Canton, Camden Preble Shawnee, 20-3, vs. Cincinnati McNicholas, 18-6, at Dayton, Elyria Catholic, 12-11, vs. Genoa, 22-1, at Bowling Green and Tiltonsville Buckeye South, 21-3, vs. Columbus Hartley, 18-5, at Athens.

The Class A championships match Lorain Clearview, 21-2, against Dalton, 22-1, at Canton, Indian Valley South, 19-4, vs. Peebles, 20-4, at Steubenville, Mount Blanchard Riverdale, 20-3, vs. Continental, 24-1, at Bowling Green and Pittsburg Franklin-Monroe, 23-3, vs. Pleasant, 20-3, at Dayton.

N.Y. Yankees Face Old Problems

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The New York Yankees will have a new ballpark this year, but the same, old problems—weak defense and not enough pitching.

The "homeless" Yankees head into the 1974 baseball season at Shea Stadium with virtually the same cast that finished fourth in the American League East last season.

Playing in the New York Mets' stadium while their own Yankee Stadium is being remodeled may present even more problems as well for the American League team.

The Yankees' right-handed hitting, specifically catcher Thurman Munson and designated hitter Jim Ray Hart, may be given a lift because of the shorter power alley in left-center field. But the left-handers will miss that short porch at Yankee Stadium.

And the pitchers will miss the long center-field, says Yankee ace Mel Stottlemyre.

"I'll be more conscious of the fact that I must keep the ball down in Shea," says Stottlemyre, a sinker ball pitcher who had a 16-16 record and 3.07 earned run average in 1973.

George Medich, based on his 14-9 won-lost record and 2.91 ERA as a rookie in 1973, must be considered the Yankees' No. 2 starter.

These two pitchers were the only consistent ones for the Yanks last season, and Manager Bill Virdon, in his first year, will really have it tough unless Fritz Peterson, Steve Kline, Sam McDowell and Pat Dobson do better than last season.

Fritz Peterson slumped to an 8-15 record, Kline was a washout because of injury, McDowell was 5-8 with a modest 3.95 ERA and Dobson 9-8 with an even worse 4.24.

Along with this questionable starting staff, the Yankees' relief pitching has been weakened by the loss of Lindy McDaniel. He was traded to the Kansas City Royals for right-fielder Lou Piniella and Ken Wright, a pitcher of lesser accomplishment.

King of the hill in the bullpen will be Sparky Lyle—but the southpaw may have to work harder with the departure of McDaniel. Lyle saved 27 games and posted a 2.51 ERA last year.

Piniella should add punch to the Yankee batting order, which also includes some pretty good hitters like Munson, Hart, center fielder Bobby Murcer, left fielder Roy White, third baseman Graig Nettles and Ron Blomberg, when he's playing first base.

When Blomberg isn't playing first base, it'll be Mike Hegan.

Shortstop Gene Michael is too old to play everyday and some critics insist that Clarke is too unsure to play at all. The Yankees' need was underscored dramatically when they acquired young Jim Mason from the Texas Rangers and got relatively inexperienced Billy Parker from the California organization in the minor league draft.

Neither looks like the new Phil Rizzuto.

Green Jacksonville Golf Leader

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Hubert Green, who's been there before, held the lead in the Greater Jacksonville Open Golf Tournament today but the lanky, laconic young man wasn't making any rash predictions.

"There's a long way to go and I'm not predicting anything," Green said Friday after his five-under-par 67 had given him a one stroke lead through 36 holes of the $150,000 event.

"I've been here before and gone the other way," Green said. "I've been here before and stayed here. Anything can happen yet."

Green, gunning for a fourth title in the last 12 months, birdied four of the first five holes he played Friday and put together a two round total of 137, seven under par on the 7,088 yard Deerwood Country Club course.

One stroke back at 138 Homero Blancas and John Mahaffey, who shared the lead at the end of 18 holes. Blancas built his round of 67 around an eagle three and Mahaffey took a 70 in the mild, cloudy weather.

Arnold Palmer, at 44, still a crowd favorite despite his lack of recent success, moved into contention with a 69 that he called "my best tee to green round in a long time—certainly this year." He was tied at 139 with Leonard Thompson, Jim Wiechers and Nate Starks.

Oral Roberts Coach Suspends Himself

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Ken Trickey has fouled out of today's NCAA basketball playoff game between Oral Roberts and Kansas.

A police arrest led the emotional Oral Roberts coach to suspend himself from the Midwest regional finals Friday.

"As a result of the high standards at Oral Roberts, I think it advisable to suspend myself immediately," Trickey said, commenting on his arrest for driving while intoxicated.

Warriors Top Lakers

LOS ANGELES (AP)—If George Johnson could play full time he might be the National Basketball Association's second leading rebounder.

Instead the 6-foot-11 reserve of the Golden State Warriors is a resident of the bench and plays only when big Nate Thurmond can't because of various injuries.

Johnson turned in another spectacular performance Friday night, grabbing 30 rebounds, scoring 14 points and helping the Warriors take over first place in the closest of the NBA's divisional races with a 112-107 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers.

Johnson got able help from another reserve, Cazzie Russell, who scored 35 points.

The two teams, who clash again tonight in Oakland, are in a virtual tie for the lead in the Pacific Division. The Lakers have won one more game and lost one more and trail Golden State by two percentage points.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Detroit beat Milwaukee 93-89; Cleveland edged Boston 104-103; Chicago dumped Buffalo 114-97; Houston defeated Capital 114-105; Philadelphia downed Phoenix 108-101; Portland downed New York 108-105, and Atlanta romped over Seattle 126-107.

"There just aren't enough words to describe the job that George has been doing for us," said Warrior Coach Al Attles. "He played quite a bit earlier in the season when Nate was hurt but recently he's had some fantastic games against (Elvin) Hayes, (Kareem Abdul-) Jabbar and two games against Bob Lanier."

problems with the Rev. Oral Roberts, the school's president, has already resigned his job, effective at the end of this season.

The Titans' popular, 40-year-old coach met with Roberts behind closed doors Friday and later issued a brief statement to newsmen:

"I was stopped (Thursday night) by the highway patrol on my way home after attending NCAA activities with coaches and friends. I was taken downtown and had charges filed against me.

"The charges are in the hands of my attorney and will be answered in court."

Trickey's only comment on his meeting with Roberts: "President Roberts concurred with my recommendation and I will make no more comment."

Assistant Coach Jack Sutter took over Trickey's job for the game at Tulsa, Okla., one of four regional finals today.

UCLA, the defending national champion and ranked No. 2 in the country, met San Francisco for the West championship at Tucson, Ariz.

Michigan faced Marquette at Tuscaloosa, Ala., for the Midwest title, and top-ranked North Carolina State played Pitt at Raleigh, N.C., for the championship of the East regionals.

The four winners advance to next week's championship round at Greensboro, N.C. The semifinals will take place on Saturday, March 23, and the NCAA title game will be played the following Monday, March 25.

Trickey, who once vowed to bring a national championship to Oral Roberts in a unique, "five-year plan", ironically took himself out of the picture at a crucial moment.

Hoosiers Edge Tennessee 73-71 In CCA Tournament

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Indiana's Bobby Knight has passed his first-round test in the infant Collegiate Commissioners Association basketball tournament and says he's not so displeased after all.

But the 34-year-old coach, whose 10th-rated Hoosiers outlasted Tennessee 73-71 Friday night, does say he thinks the NCAA tourney should be enlarged.

"I think it should expand to 40 teams and take more than just the champion from each conference," Knight explained.

"First, there is the possibility that the conference winner is not the best team at the end of the season. Second, two or three of the best teams in the country could be in the same conference."

Knight's Hoosiers, 21-5, deadlocked Michigan, 21-5, for top honors in the Big Ten Conference only to lose a playoff to the 12th-ranked Wolverines

Knights Top Minnesota

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some teams are never satisfied, it seems.

Take the Jersey Knights, for example. Last-placers in the World Hockey Association's East Division, the Knights whipped the Minnesota Fighting Saints, second in the West, 5-3 Friday night.

"Aside from the last 10 minutes of the first period, we outplayed them and we should have won by a larger margin," said Harry Howell, the Knights' playing coach.

"We played an exceptionally good game tonight," he added. "I wish we'd played the other one like that."

Elsewhere in the WHA, the Winnipeg Jets outlasted the Vancouver Blazers 7-5 and the New England Whalers whipped the Oilers 6-2.

In the National Hockey League, the Pittsburgh Penguins walloped the California Seals 6-1 and the Vancouver Canucks blanked the Atlanta Flames 3-0.

The Knights erupted for three goals in 80 seconds early in the second period, two of them by Wayne Rivers, to erase a 1-0 deficit.

Rivers made it 3-1 by beating Minnesota goalie John Garrett at 4:45 and Howell scored at 10:06.

George Morrison got his 34th goal for Minnesota late in the period and Mike Walton netted his 49th early in the final period.

earlier this week.

After stewing over the defeat, the team voted to participate in the CCA and made the trip worthwhile despite tepid shooting.

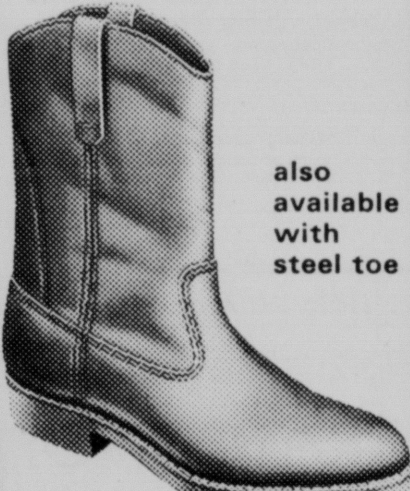

Indiana hit only 17 of 47 shots and trailed Tennessee 39-37 at halftime in front of a sparse, pro-Volunteer crowd.

But the sharpshooting of John Laskowski and Kent Benson, a 6-foot-10 freshman, soon sent the Hoosiers on a 12-point pree to a 53-44 lead.

Also advancing to the semifinals was Bradley, 20-7, who powered to a 30-14 lead in 9½ minutes and subdued Kansas State 68-64.

Indiana and Bradley will play Sunday against Toledo, 19-8, and Southern California, 23-4, in a meet devised for runnersup.

Juvenile Court Terminates Cases Against 25 Youths, 3 Adults

Cases involving six traffic offenders, 19 delinquent youths and three adults were recently finished in Pickaway County Juvenile Court. Included in the cases terminated was a bastardy case in which the defendant agreed to pay the plaintiff $500 in cash. The case was thereby settled before the court.

Judge Guy G. Cline ordered the parents of a child which is presently in the care of the Pickaway County Children's Services to pay a total of $25 per week for her care.

Upon the recommendation of assistant county prosecutor, James R. Kingsley, two charges were dismissed against Terry Sowers, 129 Logan St. Sowers who was charged in juvenile court for violation of probation and contributing to the delinquency of a minor was recently sentenced to a term in the Ohio Penitentiary.

William E. Adkins, 17, Ashville, appeared on a defective exhaust charge filed by Highway Patrolman L. P. Hardesty. Adkins received a $10 suspended fine and was ordered by the court to attend traffic school. A second charge against Adkins was transferred from Franklin County. Charged with driving an unsafe vehicle, he was sentenced to another $10 suspended fine.

Driving while under suspension brought a fine and license suspension to Mark Anthony Lutz, 16, Route 2. The court suspended $25 of a $50 fine and suspended Lutz's license for one year. He was also ordered to attend traffic school and had his driving rights restored for work only while his license is suspended.

Highway Patrolman D. E. Norman filed charges in juvenile court against 18-year-old Richy Brown, Route 1. Brown, charged with speed, received a $10 suspended fine and a one-month license suspension. He was also ordered to attend traffic school and had his driving rights restored for work and school only during the suspension.

Douglas E. Radabaugh, 17, 499 E. Franklin St., was arrested by Sheriff's deputy J. Phillip Brown for speeding. The court suspended a $10 fine and suspended Radabaugh's license for one month. Judge Cline also ordered him to attend traffic school.

A charge of driving on a temporary permit without a licensed driver was filed against Danny Wayne Wetzel, 16, Route 4. He was sentenced to a $10 suspended fine, a one-month license suspension and ordered to attend traffic school. After he obtains his license, he will be allowed to drive to work and to traffic school during his suspension.

Two cases were terminated with the Pickaway County Children's Services because the youths were over 18 and were living independently. One case was terminated because the youth was receiving Social Security insurance and another because she was receiving aid for dependent children.

A 17-year-old Atlanta boy pleaded guilty to a charge of theft and was placed on probation for one year. A sentence to the Ohio Youth Commission was suspended. Another Atlanta boy was charged with theft and the assistant prosecutor recommended the case be dismissed.

School truancy charges brought a 10-day jail sentence to a 16-year-old Ashville boy. The court suspended a sentence to the Ohio Youth Commission and placed the boy on probation for two years. The jail sentence was suspended and the boy was placed in the temporary care of his uncle.

A 14-year-old Route 1, girl received a 10-day jail sentence for violation of probation. Eight of the days were suspended and she was given credit for two days already served. A sentence to the Ohio Youth Commission was suspended and the girl was continued on probation. A second girl, also of Route 1, received the same sentence for violation of probation. She is 16 years old and was also continued on probation.

Attempted assault charges filed against a 17-year-old Route 4 boy brought one year's probation. The court also ordered the boy to complete 100 hours of community work and ordered him not to associate with the two persons involved in the incident.

Two Route 4 girls, ages 14 and 15, were found by the court to be incorrigible and were sentenced to the Ohio Youth Commission. The sentences were suspended pending entrance of the girls into the Sailors and Soldiers Children's Home.

A 16-year-old Circleville boy, charged with making harassing phone calls and violation of probation, was placed on probation for two years. A sentence to the Ohio Youth Commission was suspended.

Violation of probation charges against a 16-year-old Circleville girl brought a sentence to the Ohio Youth Commission and a 10-day jail term. The girl is to be held for 90 days pending further orders from the court. A similar sentence was passed by Judge Cline on another 16-year-old girl, from Route 3. She is also being held for further disposition by the court.

A 13-year-old Route 1, Williamsport child was released from the Ohio Youth Commission to the parents and placed on three years probation for school truancy.

Nine days of a 10-day jail sentence were suspended on a violation of probation charge against a 17-year-old Circleville girl. The girl had already served one day and was given credit for it. She was continued on probation.

Four Derby boys, ages eight, ten and two 11-year-olds, were charged with the trespassing by force, stealth or deception in the unoccupied building of the Grove City Farmer's Exchange in Derby. All four children were placed on probation for three years and ordered to make restitution for the damages. Court costs were also charged to the youths.

A 15-year-old Route 2, Orient boy received a 10-day jail sentence for violation of probation. He was also continued on probation.

March 17-23 Named Poison Prevention Week

Dr. Frank R. Moore, Health Commissioner of Pickaway County Health Department understands and expressed concern for childhood poisonings. Moore joins national efforts in recognizing March 17-23 as National Poison Prevention Week.

Although Moore stated that poison prevention must be every week, he went on to stress the need to bring home the word prevention.

"Prevention" in Moore's words, means taking your child's safety seriously and following some suggested guidelines in cooperation with the Accident Prevention and Product Safety Unit, Ohio Department of Health.

1. Keep every potentially poisonous product out of your child's sight and reach.

2. Be sure all products are properly and clearly labeled.

3. Keep the poison in its original container. Do not store in food or beverage containers.

4. Do not store poisonous substances near food or beverage items.

5. Read the label and carefully follow "caution" statements.

6. Destroy unused portions of medicine by flushing it down the drain.

7. Never take or give medication in the dark. Turn on the light and carefully read the label.

8. Call medicines by their proper name—they are not candy.

9. Take advantage of the new "child-proof" packaging. They are for your child's protection and they do work!

10. Have handy the phone number of your nearest doctor, poison control center, hospital and police.

Ninety-five per cent of all accidental poisonings are preventable; poison prevention week is every week.

Oil Ministers Ponder Prices, Set Announcement

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Ministers from the world's major oil-producing countries met today to discuss raising or lowering the posted price of oil. Delegation heads who talked to reporters said they saw no reason to lower prices.

The regularly scheduled meeting of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum-Exporting Countries (OPEC) came on the eve of an expected announcement by Arab oil producers formally lifting — at least temporarily — the oil embargo against the United States.

Algerian Oil Minister Belaid Abdeslam was asked as he entered the conference room at OPEC headquarters if oil prices would be lowered at the meeting.

"I would prefer to discuss increased prices," he responded.

The new Venezuelan minister for mining and hydrocarbon, Valentin Hernandez Acosta, said the factors that brought the posted price of oil up to its present rate of about $11.65 a barrel "have not yet been removed." He apparently was referring to continuing inflation in Western industrialized countries where the oil producers get most of their manufactured goods.

The Arab ministers reportedly decided Wednesday in Tripoli, Libya, to lift the oil ban against the United States. They were expected to debate the issue again in side meetings in Vienna and then make an announcement Sunday.

Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Ahmed Zaki Yamani, told CBS News Friday night that a final decision on lifting the embargo had not yet been made but he had no doubt it would come Sunday. Yamani said production of oil, now 85 per cent of pre-October levels, would be increased.

Saudi Arabia, the controller of the world's biggest known oil reserves, is the key to the boycott. King Faisal is still on record as opposing lifting the ban until Israel gives up all its captured territories, but the Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar quoted Yamani as saying Saudi Arabia had changed its stand "in appreciation of the first real American change toward the Arabs."

Yamani told the paper the Arabs reserve the right to resume the embargo if no disengagement of Israeli and Syrian forces occurs. The Cairo paper Akhbar El Youm quoted official Kuwait sources as saying the embargo could resume in two months if a disengagement did not take place.

OPEC members are Venezuela, Ecuador, Iran, Nigeria, Indonesia, Gabon, Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Kuwait, Qatar, the United Arab Emirates, Libya and Algeria. The Arab oil producers' separate group — the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries (OAPEC) — includes the seven Arab OPEC members plus Egypt, Syria and Bahrain.

The current price of oil is $11.65 per barrel for light Arab crude, and varies slightly in other areas. Rumors of price hikes have recently been counterbalanced by unconfirmed reports that a "freeze" on the price of oil, in effect until April 1, may be extended for another three months.

Ohioans Hear Election Candidates

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Republican U.S. Senate candidate said Friday that severe punishment and education of the young is the cure for kidnapping.

Peter A. Voss of Canton, speaking at a Republican dinner in Wilmington Friday night, said the young must be taught the sanctity of private property, emphasizing that the rich are entitled to keep what is theirs just as the poor.

He said punishment for kidnappers should be severe and receive as much publicity as the crime itself.

Voss said he was replying to a Harvard Law School professor who proposed kidnappers be given $5,000, a half hour of free television time and

Streaking Craze Goes Interstate

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP) — Six men staged one of the first interstate streaks here early today, dashing across the Ohio River from Kentucky to Ohio on the U.S. 23 bridge.

The streakers, described by startled toll collectors as five young men and an older man with a beard, made their crossing shortly before 2 a.m.

None stopped to pay the 10-cent pedestrian toll, collectors said.

The Todds said Friday that each is thinking about running for statewide office — he for Education Commissioner and she for the Public Service Commission.

"We'd only have to print one card to give out, 'His' on one side and 'Hers' on the other," he said.

Judge Blocks Sterilization Regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Warning that there's a fine line between population control and race improvement, a federal judge has struck down new federal rules governing the sterilization of up to 150,000 poor Americans each year.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell barred the government Friday from financing the sterilization of any more minors or mentally incompetent persons, and ordered new safeguards to protect needy adults from being coerced into sterilizations.

The impact of the decision was to prohibit the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare from paying for any more sterilization operations until it has written new regulations overcoming the court's objections.

"The dividing line between family planning and eugenics is murky," Gesell wrote in a 12-page opinion backed up with a three-page order.

"Whatever might be the merits of limiting irresponsible reproduction, which each year places increasing numbers of unwanted or mentally defective children into tax-supported institutions, it is for Congress and not individual social workers and physicians to determine the manner in which federal funds should be used to support such a program," he said.

Gesell said that the government has been financing between 100,000 and 150,000 sterilizations of low-income persons annually, including 2,000 to 3,000 under 21 years of age and fewer than 300 under 18.

No statistics were offered indicating how many mentally incompetent persons have been sterilized. HEW has said that fewer than 1,000 minors and mentally incompetent were sterilized through federally aided programs each year.

Since last summer, HEW has frozen the use of its funds to sterilize minors and the incompetent.

Man Sought For Kidnap Of 3 Boys

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — FBI agents and Huntington police were searching for a 26-year-old man who is charged with abducting three boys from a home for neglected children here.

Authorities said Roger Dale Blankenship disappeared with the boys 15 days ago. Blankenship, a "house father" at the institution, has been charged by city police with abduction and by the FBI with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

A Welfare Department worker assigned to the center said the boys—aged 10, 14, and 15—were "seen leaving in Blankenship's car. Until that time we didn't think the boys were with Blankenship."

The Huntington Advertiser said the center didn't report the disappearance until March 1 and that the police department withheld the information until this week when a member of the newspaper staff received a tip that the man and boys were missing.

Mrs. Margaret Rhodes, director of Child Care Services at the Cammack Children's Home where Blankenship was employed, said he was hired last September. She admitted that his references were never checked.

She said he had spoken of looking for another job.

"He told me he would have to leave when the children were asleep because he was so attached to them he couldn't stand to say goodbye," she said. "Naturally when I heard he left in the middle of the night I wasn't surprised and we didn't think the boys were with him until some of the other children said they had seen them leave together."

500 Coal Mines Facing Shutdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 500 coal mines accounting for 5 per cent of U.S. production face government closure March 30 for failing to comply with federal safety standards.

The Interior Department said

Friday it will order the mines sealed despite appeals from the Federal Energy Office which is concerned over the loss of production.

Says Watergate Charges Are False

CHICAGO (AP)—Launching a series of image-building forays around the country, President Nixon has declared that all Watergate-related accusations against him are "totally false."

Fielding an hour of questions Friday from members of the Executives Club of Chicago, Nixon said that the presidency itself would be gravely damaged if he resigned as an innocent man.

Nixon told the nationwide television-radio audience that if he were to quit, any future president could be removed simply by becoming the target of unproven charges.

Tonight the President will join Mrs. Nixon in Nashville to help dedicate a new home for the Grand Ole Opry and on Tuesday will have another hour-long broadcast question-and-answer session before a Houston audience.

In the wide-ranging Chicago appearance before what proved to be a friendly audience, Nixon also made other major points:

—European allies are balking at negotiating with the United States on economic and political issues, he said, and therefore his planned April trip to Europe to sign a new statement of principles for the Atlantic community has been derailed.

—While there has been no official word on ending the Arab oil embargo, suggestions that strings may be attached prompt him to say that "the United States is not going to be pressured by its friends in the Middle East and that pressure could upset American efforts to promote a peace settlement in that region."

—The administration will continue to pursue detente with the Soviet Union, believing the alternative might be a $100 billion escalation in arms outlays and more difficult prospects for Soviet Jews wishing to emigrate to Israel.

—The President will cooperate with the House Judiciary Committee in its impeachment inquiry "as fully as I possibly can to get a prompt and just resolution of this matter." However, he will insist on drawing the line against granting a "fishing license" for searches of his files because, in his view, that also would weaken the presidential office.

Nixon was not asked directly in Chicago about differences between two of his past statements on a crucial Watergate issue — whether or when he was told hush money was being paid to original defendants in the burglary case.

At a March 6 news conference, Nixon said ousted counsel John W. Dean III told him last March 21 "that payments had been made to defendants for the purpose of keeping them quiet, not simply for their defense."

However, in an Aug. 15 television speech, Nixon said he was "only told that the money had been used for attorneys' fees and family support, not that it had been paid to procure silence from the recipients."

The President raised the matter himself in the Chicago appearance, saying in effect that his March 6 statement was not meant to suggest hush money was paid as part of a cover-up because, he said, such questions still must be resolved in the courts.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler later told reporters he did not expect Nixon to discuss the issue further, saying "I think it covered it pretty well."

Members of the Executives Club interrupted Nixon's statements with frequent applause in a ballroom at the Conrad Hilton Hotel. On the street outside the hotel, vocal and mostly youthful critics of the President drowned out a smaller group of Nixon supporters with such chants as "Jail to the Chief."

One questioner asked Nixon if he would appear at criminal trials of present Watergate defendants if his testimony was needed to help his former aides and close associates. The President responded that he thought it would be inappropriate for the President to be jumping into the witness box in federal trials.

While pledging cooperation up to a point with the Judiciary Committee, Nixon argued he has already provided the panel with unprecedented amounts of evidence, and said, "the committee should first examine what it has" before seeking any further tapes or documents.

Communications Controls Lifted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's vast communications industry has been freed from government price controls in a decision that may mean higher charges for newspapers, books, magazines and printed and broadcast advertising.

The sweeping exemption granted by the Cost of Living Council Friday also relieves communications employees from wage controls, with the lone exception of the newspaper industry.

Newspaper employees are still subject to wage controls because "some important collective bargaining agreements are in the process of negotiations," the council said.

Council director John T. Dunlop said the agency was referring to negotiations between several unions and New York newspapers, where pattern-setting wage increases could be at stake. Printers and the newspapers are engaged in a dispute over automation.

The council said it hopes an exemption for newspaper employees can be granted soon.

The Nixon administration wants mandatory wage-price controls to expire over most of the economy by April 30, except in the health and petroleum industries.

The exemption applies to printing, publishing and allied industries; radio and television broadcasting; communication services; advertising; mailing, reproduction, commercial art, photography and stenographic services; news syndicates; photofinishing laboratories and public relations services.

According to the council, these industries include about 72,000 firms and account for $59.5 billion in revenues with more than 576,000 employees. Some are already free of controls because of the small-business exemption.

"Price increases during the period of controls have been relatively moderate," council deputy director James W. McLane said. "The council expects this pattern of moderate price increases to continue after decontrol."

Price increases may be highest in the commercial printing industry, the council said.

do," said a spokesman for the department's Mine Enforcement Safety Administration.

MESA chief James M. Day's finding that there was no legal way to amend the 1969 Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act to permit continued operation of the mines was upheld by Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton.

Sources said Morton feared that if the rules were changed and there was a future disaster "he (Morton) would be the guy to catch hell."

The four-year-old law gave small mine operators until March 30, 1974, to comply with federal standards requiring installation of explosion-proof machinery.

The affected mines, mostly small independent operations located in Appalachia, produce about 30 million tons of coal a year. Officials estimated that 5,000 to 6,000 miners will lose their jobs as a result of the forced closings.

With the Nixon administration already predicting a possible 20-million-ton shortfall of coal this year, the FEO urged MESA either to defer compliance with the closure provisions or to amend the rules to permit only partial compliance.

A MESA spokesman said officials were considering granting extensions to operators who could demonstrate an effort to comply, but that no decision would be made for several days.

"We were not trying to interfere with MESA," said an FEO spokesman. "We simply tried to encourage anything that could be done to benefit production without affecting the safety of the miners."

John L. Kilcullen, a Washington attorney representing the National Independent Coal Operators Association, said it "would be absolutely foolish" for small mine operators to spend the money necessary to comply with the law.

"Most of the operators don't have the coal reserves to warrant an investment of $400,000 that is needed to purchase the required equipment," he said.

Parochial Ruling Eyed This Summer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The American Civil Liberties Union said Friday it expects a decision in early summer on its federal court lawsuit challenging the state's right to provide auxiliary services to non-public schools.

The three-judge U.S. District Court panel heard final arguments in the case Friday.

The ACLU claims the auxiliary services provision of Ohio law is a ruse to get around other court opinions that state aid to parochial schools is unconstitutional.

Proponents of the law contend it does not violate previous court decisions.

Ohio is budgeting about $81.4 million every two years, an average of $155 per non-public school pupil, to provide help for financially-troubled parochial school systems.

The funds to be distributed by local public school districts for projects and materials for use by all schools and in the hiring of personnel such as hearing and speech therapists, who serve both public and private institutions.

Courts earlier struck down laws to provide direct grants to parents of non-public school pupils and to provide a $90 a per student tax credit to parents.

Tips For The New Vegetable Gardners

By GOERGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent
Agriculture

So you're thinking of producing your own vegetables this year. Not a bad idea, considering the continuing high increases in cost of living. And, you can eat better on less money, if you scout around for the right information on how to do it. You might start by getting a copy of Bulletin 287, Home Vegetable Gardening, from your local County Extension Office.

Growing vegetables is not simply turning over the sod in your backyard and planting some seeds. If this is your plan, better spend your money at the corner grocery and bring your vegetables home in a paper bag.

According to Jim Utzinger, Extension Horticulturist at The Ohio State University, you'll need fertile, well-drained soil of a loamy texture. Since many "new" gardeners might not have fertile, loamy soil (most of us are victims of basement clay spread over our yards), the next best thing is to work in a lot of soil conditioners such as peat moss, compost, sawdust or other available organic matter. This aspect of garden preparation must not be overlooked, says Utzinger.

Of course, while you're waiting for spring is a good time to sketch out a garden plan. Bulletin 287 will help you do this. Include in the plan the kind and amount of vegetables to be planted, crop planting dates, planting locations (within the garden), and spacing between rows. Such planning provides for the desired amount of each vegetable and aids the gardener in buying the proper amount of seed and plants.

You'll need a shovel and a lot of muscle, if you don't have a power tiller, just to spade up the soil and mix in the organic matter. After you have the soil well-prepared (ready to plant), you might get by with a hoe and other incidentals available around the house such as your wheelbarrow, stakes, water hose, string-insecticides, etc.

Fertilizer may not be easily found, and you'll need a good complete fertilizer. By that we mean one that contains the three primary plant nutrients—nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium. Examples are 8-16-16 or 5-10-10 or 12-12-12. There are others. Don't make the mistake of using lawn fertilizers that may contain weed killers or extremely high nitrogen content, formulated especially for lawns.

For the newcomer to backyard gardening, there's a lot to learn, so don't waste the next month—start collecting information now and prepare yourself to be a good gardener; otherwise you'll be a disappointed statistic.

tours of cycle shops were discussed. Mrs. Karshner served refreshments.

There will be two ten-county training meetings held for persons interested in small animals or dog projects.

Laurel Oaks Vocational School near Wilmington, will be the location on Thursday, March 21, beginning at 7:30 p.m., for a Small Animal and Dog Training Clinic.

The Small Animal Clinic has been designed for 4-H members, parents, and advisors and other interested persons.

Projects being covered include rabbits, caveys, gerbils, hamsters, and other pocket pets. Areas to be covered include housing and care, breeds and breeding, feeding and nutrition, disease and treatment, and exhibiting and show procedures.

The Dog Clinic has actually been scheduled for two nights—March 21 and 28—but unlike the Small Animal Clinic, this program has been designed primarily for adults—including advisors, parents, members of kennel clubs, or other interested persons.

March 21 will find such topics as philosophy of 4-H dog training, resource materials available, conditioning and grooming, the pilot dog program, and how to organize a 4-H dog club, covered. On March 28, the entire evening will be devoted to obedience training, including sub-novice, novice, graduate-novice and open. Participants may bring their dogs if they so desire.

A special feature for this night will be a drill team presentation by the Licking County Kennel Club. This group featured recently in Dog World Magazine is a widely sought-after group, and they have appeared on TV and at many public events.

If you plan to attend either session, please contact the County Extension Office. One of the reasons for scheduling both sessions on the same night, was to provide the opportunity for car pools due to the current energy situation.

The Stylish Stitchers 4-H club will hold their organization meeting for the year on March 19, at 7:30 p.m., at the home of Mrs. Barbara Derflinger, Route 2, Plazier Road, Ashville, Ohio. All girls wishing to join this club should attend this organizational meeting.

The 4-H Rough Riders Club is one of the oldest horse clubs in the County. Through the years they have won their share of horsemanship and showmanship classes. However we feel there is more to 4-H than just winning so we were the first in the state of Ohio with a 4-H Rodeo event. This event we felt was a place for a boy or girl to compete in events that he or she has the ability for. However some of the rodeo events have been discontinued due to inadequate facilities. We would like to bring these events back. Since the competition in the rodeo isn't so keen the boys and girls have a lot of fun together. The combined 4-H club horse clubs have agreed to work together toward money making projects for the much needed improvements on arena, paddock, fencing, dressing rooms, etc. Any help from civic organizations will be appreciated.

FUTURE FARMERS OF MONROE

4-H is both rewarding for the members and the community. The Future Farmers of Monroe 4-H club have community projects every year. Shown are some of the members as they pick up litter at Deer Creek Reservoir. The reservoir is almost in their own back yard. The members pack their lunch and enjoy a day together. They do this community project so that other people can enjoy the clean grounds and road ways to the park and fishing facilities.

The Future Farmers of Monroe have done other community projects. Some of these are painting mailboxes, putting up American flags and working on the loading docks at the Pickaway Fair grounds, and painting trash barrels for the fair and Monroe Elementary School.

The Future Farmers are a united group, which can be proven by the fact that they have been in existence for 52 years and that they have been an honor club for the past several years. They always try to accomplish their goals. While doing projects to help others, they always have fun themselves.

DEERCREEK BUSY BEES

The Deercreek Busy Bees are busy indeed, already organizing and planning projects. They decided to have two groups, meeting at different times, because they have such a growing membership. They elected two sets of officers, but will still be considered one club. The third through sixth grade officers are: Kelly McCafferty, president; Stephanie Snyder, vice president; Kristi Lane, secretary; Tracy Stonerock, treasurer; Jerri Kaiser, reporter; and Veronica Carter, recreation.

The junior and senior high officers elected are: Connie Drummond, president; Cindy Hamman, vice president; Susan Hillman, secretary; Nancy Schein, treasurer; Dawn Hawks, health; Lori Hulse, safety; Dee Ann Clark, reporter; Jo Carol Hawks, photography; Cathy Schleich and Crystal Metzger, recreation leaders.

The Busy Bees are choosing a wide variety of projects and are advised by Mrs. Mary Alice Schein, Mrs. Marsha Horch, Mrs. Nancy Snyder, Mrs. Pat Metzger, Mrs. Jeannie Hamman, Mrs. Clarabelle Valentine, and Mrs. Glenna Wisecup.

JUNIOR PILOTS

Last year a new club was added to the local 4-H program. This new club was named the Junior Pilots.

The Junior Pilots consisted of a crew of fourteen with all members completing the 1973 4-H year. The Junior Pilots did not consist of all boys as one might expect; it also included one girl named Kim Walker. Kim was able to compete with the boys and took first place honors in the Aerospace Program.

Members of the club learned about aviation and flight principles by building model airplanes. These models were then displayed at the fair. All members learned what makes the aircraft fly, control surfaces and their function, forces that work upon the aircraft in flight and finally construction of the model chosen for exhibit. Knowledge of the aircraft was demonstrated to Sgt. Sutton, an Air Force Representative, 4-H judge, and pilot.

All meetings were held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Walker, adviser and co-adviser. Mr. Walker is a licensed commercial pilot and holds an instrument rating.

David Sutton, President, and his co-officers accomplished a very good first year. This year we hope to be as successful and plan to visit the Air Force Museum, Lockbourne Air Force Base and possibly tour the facilities of Port Columbus Airport.

DOG IN MY LIFE

The Dog in My Life 4-H club is now 3 years old. In this club we have boys and girls and dogs of all sizes and shapes and different personalities. Our goals are to learn obedience (both dog and master) and to learn sportmanship, how to be fair and to treat everyone as equals and most of all how to help each other. The boys and girls have taken part in 4-H camp and the county fair. They also participated in the 4-H camp and the county fair. They also participated in the Ashville 4th of July parade. They traveled to Columbus to the K-9 Kennel Club for a demonstration on training guard dogs. They are going to Columbus to observe Columbus All Breed Training Club members train the obedience classes they offer.

We have recreation, take part in Heart Fund Drives and our leader worked with the Jerry Lewis Telethon in our name. We have money making projects and in general we enjoy our club. We meet every Thursday, at 7:00 p.m., in Ashville Elementary School.

If you are 10 or older and still want to join call 983-2567. We still have a couple of openings. Keep in mind 4-H is for the kids by the kids. Leaders are to guide and teach and to offer assistance only when needed. If you are interested, give us a try. You'll like it.

RED CROSS 4-H CLUB

We all want to be good neighbors. Several young people have taken a step toward this goal. They are helping to organize a Red Cross 4-H club, Good Neighbors. They are planning their program and have many exciting suggestions.

We hope to have guest speakers on nutrition, drug abuse, hypnosis, public health. Our field trips will take us to Chillicothe Medical Center, Veteran's Hospital, Holzer Hospital, Children's Hospital and Athens Mental Health Center.

Spring Is Time To Seed Alfalfa

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent
Agriculture

Spring seeding alfalfa alone can increase plant survival and stand vigor, says Donald K. Myers, Extension Agronomist at The Ohio State University.

Traditionally, alfalfa in Ohio has been spring seeded with a small grain such as oats or winter wheat. These grains compete with the alfalfa for light, moisture, and soil nutrients. They also provide suitable conditions for alfalfa seedling disease.

Myers suggests using forage herbicides to control weeds in alfalfa seeded alone. He says yields of up to 3 tons or more the year of seeding have been harvested in Ohio from this program. Soil and air temperatures and soil moisture during late March and early April are ideal for quick germination and rapid seedling growth of alfalfa, he claims.

Further details are available in the Ohio Agronomy Guide, Bulletin 472, available at the County Extension Service Office.

Alert Game Plan Helps Beat Weeds

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent
Agriculture

If your farm provides an annual playing field for the battle of corn or soybeans vs weeds, now is the time to plan some game strategy, says Edward W. Stroube, Extension Agronomist at The Ohio State University. With the proper game plan, equipment and timing, you can help your crops win the contest against weeds, he claims.

Weeds compete with crop plants for nutrients, especially nitrogen, the specialist says. If you can apply only the minimum amount of nitrogen for corn production, as may be the case in 1974, you will have a much greater need for good weed control.

Game strategy to control weeds may include various tillage practices or the use of herbicides (weed-killing chemicals). In most situations, Stroube explains, a combination of tillage and herbicides offers the best chance for victory.

If you are going to plant corn with absolutely no tillage - no plowing or use of any tillage tool - you must accomplish weed control completely with herbicides. There are good herbicides for the various weed and vegetation situations. The Ohio Agronomy Guide, Cooperative Extension Service Bulletin 472, contains specific recommendations and is available at the County Extension Office.

If the fuel shortage or the yield advantage of planting on time make it advisable to use a reduced tillage system, you will need different weed control methods than you would need with conventional tillage. In both corn and soybean production, if something less than a well-prepared seedbed is to be used, it is essential that you kill, at crop planting time, weeds that survive the reduced tillage.

Stroube claims it is virtually impossible to control weed seedlings after the crop is up. This is especially true of grassy weeds. Therefore, he recommends the use of a contact herbicide such as Paraquat at planting time to kill weed seedlings that are present. Also use a soil-applied herbicide, selected to be used on the basis of weed species and crop rotation.

Herbicides applied before or soon after application (pre-emergence) don't always result in complete control of weeds, says Stroube. It is important to use followup control measures on time. Do not delay and allow the escaped weeds to smother the crop before you take action. Use appropriate tillage practices or post-emergence herbicide application.

There is a selection of good post-emergence treatment for corn, but the selection is somewhat limited for soybeans.

Supplies of most herbicides will be adequate, Stroube believes, but some materials will be short. Determine your herbicide needs as accurately as possible based on your acreage of corn and soybeans, your planned tillage systems, your specific weed problems, and your crop rotation plan. Then place your order for these herbicides.

You must apply herbicides accurately and at the right time, the specialist warns. If you don't have good equipment, rebuild it, replace it, or consider a custom applicator. But if you are to have your herbicide custom applied, be sure the applicator is reliable in the correct application of materials and that he will be available when you need him. A custom applicator two or three weeks late is worse than none at all.

Don't let weeds win the battle against your profit. Plan now to help your corn or soybeans win this summer's game, soon to start on your planting fields.

March 28 is going to be a busy day according to my calendar! The latest addition (after the Sr. Citizens Diabetes Test and the High-Fever Follies) is an Energy Crisis Seminar, to be held from 9:30 a.m. - 2:30 p.m. It will be at the Electric Company in Columbus. I will be leaving at 8:45 a.m. on that morning and will return by around 3 p.m. Anyone wanting to go with me to this Seminar may pre-register for one dollar at the office before March 20.

The program speakers are from Battelle Institute, Ohio State University, the American Home Appliance Manufacturers, and the Ohio Energy Institute. There is a free lunch served. If you are interested, I'd love to have you accompany me.

I've had some questions on Vitamin E lately. In a Columbus paper, I even saw a dumb ad where you can send for Vitamin E pills and diet for a high price. Uninformed advocates of Vitamin E claim it will cure heart at-

Dairy Indemnity Extended To '77

Dairy farmers should be aware that the effective date of the Dairy Indemnity Program has been extended to June 30, 1977.

The Dairy Indemnity Program provides payments to eligible dairy farmers whose milk is removed from markets because of pesticide residue content and the manufacturers of dairy products who have been directed to remove their dairy products from commercial markets because of pesticide residue.

Dairy farmers are reminded that the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service located at 1440 N. Court St., will assist them in the event of a milk loss because of pesticide residue.

More Corn Planting Set By Ohio Farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio farmers intend to plant more corn and fewer soybeans this spring, according to Agriculture Department figures released Thursday.

The Crop Reporting Board said surveys March 1 showed farmers will plant 3,800,000 acres of corn, a 15 per cent increase over last year.

At the same time, the board said, they will plant 3,330,000 acres of soybeans, an 8 per cent drop from 1973.

Weather Odds

Many are the jokes about the housewife who listened to the latest reports from the U.S. Weather Bureau, then went outside to see for herself whether it looked safe to hang out the wash. But the fact remains weather forecasters have always been touchy about the sometimes calamitous turn of events following their pronouncements.

Part of the trouble, of course, lies in the fact that man does not know enough about the weather phenomenon in particular, and nature in general, to be more than reasonably accurate in dealings with it.

On most days, the Weather Service piles weather histories in a computer and compares current data with past experience. Thus, if in the last 100 cases of weather conditions identical to those existing today it rained on 30 of the days, the forecaster announces there is a 30 per cent chance of rain.

From that point on, you are on your own. And the weatherman is off the hook.

Hymoff Praise For OSS

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—There must be a dozen exciting movies and TV dramas in Edward Hymoff's "The OSS in World War II" (Ballantine). OSS, the Office of Strategic Services, America's first wartime espionage organization overseas, was the forerunner of today's CIA (Central Intelligence Agency). It was commanded by Gen. "Wild Bill" Donovan. It had no splendid headquarters outside Washington, D.C., wasn't nearly as well-heeled and scientifically trained, and got itself in and out of memorable situations that had their good and bad effects in war and the peace that followed.

Ed Hymoff, formerly of International News Service, was part of OSS. He operated behind German lines in the Balkans at a time when the OSS was described by Radio Berlin as "fifty professors, twenty monkeys, ten goats, twelve guinea pigs and a staff of Jewish scribblers."

It was something more.

OSS agents were in the opium business in some cases, Hymoff writes. Operatives, dropped surreptitiously into Burma by chute, carried silver coins and drugs for Burmese tribal guerrillas who were fighting or gathering information about the Japanese invaders.

"If there were any moral considerations they were overcome by the realities of war and military operations, Hymoff writes. "Opium would give OSS buying power. Going into the opium business was not questioned, once the decision was made. This buying power purchased the services of the Kachin tribesmen who made life hellish for the Japanese Army."

In China, the OSS utilized the services of major opium dealers as conduits for information passed out of Japanese-occupied areas. Hymoff adds that his own personal observation of the use of narcotics in the waging of actual and subtle war quickened while serving as a correspondent in the French war in Indochina, leading up to the rout of the French at Dienbienphu. Back in that part of the world to cover the disastrous U.S. investment, Hymoff noted on a trip to northeast Thailand countless acres of poppies being harvested by mountain tribesmen. He was at that time writing the first of four books on celebrated U.S. divisions serving in Vietnam and their past exploits: (First Marine, First Air Cav., Fourth Infantry and First Marine Aircraft Wing).

It didn't use much of Ed's reportorial know-how to fit together the harvest of the poppies in Thailand and the rising incidence of addiction among the American troops he was writing about in Vietnam. He was one of the first to bring this off-shoot of a hopeless war to the attention of the proper military authorities, and must be considered among the founding fathers of the therapy program which we reluctantly began near the end of that war.

In 1971, Hymoff uncovered the unpleasant history of OSS World War II

collaboration with the Corsican underworld, which had learned much of its narcotics trafficking techniques while smuggling arms and ammo to the French underground. Many of the Corsicans had been trained by OSS agents. A quarter of a century later, they or their families were still in business, but by then their chief customers were the heroin addicts of the United States.

OSS agents had a fine rapport with Ho Chi Minh — and OSS medic saved his life — during the Japanese occupation of Indochina. . . . British intelligence first viewed the OSS as an upstart amateur group, later marveled at the exploits of its agents, finally didn't like it one little bit. . . . Soviet spies, learning of scheduled OSS jumps into Czechoslovakia, caused the deaths of 20 OSS men, though we were ostensible allies at the time. . . . but the secret Balkan air force, which included two Soviet squadrons based in Italy, were at the same time flying supplies to OSS agents behind enemy lines.

The reader may be startled by the long-gone adventures of former OSS men. John M. Shaheen, now a prominent figure in international petroleum and soon to be a New York newspaper publisher, played an active role in the surrender of Italy while with the OSS with the rank Navy Lieutenant. On the staff of his complex but eventually successful "McGregor Project" were such junior operators as Mike Burke, former president of the New York Yankees and now president of Madison Square Garden, John Ringling North, who ran our biggest circus, and Joe Savoldi, the Notre Dame All-America back who died only recently.

The late Moe Berg, big league baseball catcher and all-but-incredible linguist, was an OSSman. I always thought that he was assigned to outrageously dangerous OSS work in Germany to kill, as quietly as possible, German physicists working on Hitler's atomic bomb. But whenever I'd ask him, point-blank, Moe would simply smile and put his forefinger to his lips.

Whatever, get a load of "The OSS in World War II." It's pure and unadulterated Bill Holden — but for real.

Portuguese Military Chiefs Ousted In Colonies Dispute

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Premier Marcel Caetano has apparently ruled out major concessions to rebels in Portugal's African territories by replacing the chief of staff of the armed forces with a hard-line hawk.

The government announced early today that Gen. Francisco Costa de Gomes, the chief of staff, and his controversial deputy, Gen. Antonio de Spínola, had been ousted after failing to appear at a meeting with more than 100 other officers to give a public pledge of loyalty to the government.

The government put the armed forces on the alert and confined them to barracks for the second time in a week, apparently in fear of adverse reaction from younger officers.

Gomes was replaced by Gen. Joaqui de Luz Cunha, the military commander in Angola, who is regarded as a firm supporter of the war against the native rebels in Angola, Mozambique and Portuguese Guinea.

Spínola's office, which was created for him when he returned a hero from duty in Portuguese Guinea, was abolished.

The situation apparently resulted from Spínola's publication of a book in which he said that military victory against the African rebels could not be won. He advocated a political solution, and Gomes apparently agreed with him.

The armed forces were confined to barracks for three days last weekend, and officials attributed this to a matter of "internal discipline." Some sources said the younger officers were restive about their pay and chances of promotion, but the unrest was widely linked to Spínola's book, "Portugal and the Future."

Both Caetano and President Americo Thomaz have declared that Portugal must fight the rebels and remain in Africa at all costs. Caetano has claimed that the rebels are agents of Moscow and Peking and would expel all the whites if they were victorious.

Pastore Blasts Nixon Campaign Reform Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., said today the most serious defect in President Nixon's campaign reform proposals was his opposition to public financing.

"Public funds for the public campaigns of public officials make good sense if we want to end political payola," Pastore said.

He called the Watergate scandals "conclusive proof that the present system of private financing breeds corruption."

Pastore spoke on all major radio networks as the spokesman for the Democratic Congress in reply to the proposals Nixon advanced a week ago in his message to Congress and on a nationwide broadcast.

"Let us not be misled by those who claim that public financing is taxation without representation and a raid on the federal treasury," Pastore said.

When Bread Is Rising

DES MOINES (AP) — The editor of one of the nation's leading farm publications says that wheat prices shouldn't be blamed for the rising price of bread.

Al Bull, writing in Wallace's Farmer, says, "Wheat in a loaf of bread usually is less than one pound. So even $5 wheat, which no miller has had to pay yet, amounts to only eight cents per loaf."

"That's still a small part of the total price, so don't buy wheat price as the real reason for increases in price of bread," he says.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Osteoporosis is a condition of the bone in which there is marked softening because of the absorption of calcium.

It is a frequently distressing condition, noted especially after the onset of the menopause, and its control has captured the attention of physicians and scientists.

Female hormones, vitamins, calcium, and phosphorus are used to increase the density of the bone and relieve the pain that may be associated with osteoporosis.

Now the chemical fluoride is being used for this purpose by Dr. Roy E. Beauchene, at the University of Tennessee. He and his colleagues, using fluoride alone, have found that it is even more effective than when given in combination with other supplements.

This may well be a significant contribution to the prevention and control of a condition that so universally plagues many middle-aged women.

A fascinating study has just been reported about a method to make wounds heal more quickly.

Percy Disagrees With Nixon Stand

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said President Nixon would be wrong to block the House Judiciary Committee's quest for further presidential material, and added that full disclosure would be the President's best defense.

Percy disagreed Friday with Mr. Nixon's Chicago statement that the committee had no right to seek further material from the White House.

He said the President was "wrong to try to block the committee from obtaining further material."

He said the committee should receive any specific document it sought, but should not go on a fishing expedition, or have a license to go over to the White House and "poke through the files."

"The best way to protect future presidents is to protect this President," Percy said, "and the way to protect this President is to produce the documents that will show his innocence."

Percy, here to address the 20th annual Conference of the Cincinnati Council on World Affairs, attacked France for its "go it alone" policy in recent years, particularly in the oil crisis.

He praised the detente with the

Dr. Bert Myers, of the New Orleans Veterans Administration Hospital, has been using epinephrine, a substance produced by the adrenal gland, to help the process of wound healing.

In the experimental animals used, the strength of the surgical wounds was found to be increased and the healing time shortened.

Epinephrine, chemically similar to adrenalin, is injected into the area of the incision. The exact mechanism of healing that follows is not yet completely understood, from a scientific point of view, but Dr. Myers says, "It works."

Wound-healing by this method will, undoubtedly be applied to humans if the promise of its advantages is substantiated.

At the Indiana University Medical Center, a new operation for club foot is being used with excellent results.

Dr. J. W. Riley and Dr. F. B. Throop have modified a technique originally designed by Dr. Owen Murphy of Lexington, Ky.

The operation is a complicated one but brings excellent results in carefully selected cases.

"We believe in freedom for writers to publish, for dissenters to dissent, for protesters to protest."

He also said citizens of all nations have the right to come and go but did not mention Soviet writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn by name.

"We must be prudent, but we must not abandon the effort to reduce East-West tensions," he said.

Percy said European nations must be made to defray the cost of maintaining troops in Europe but said a reduction of troops through negotiation with the Soviet Union would be helpful.

"France has clearly sought her own advantage with the oil producing states at the expense of her allies in Western Europe and America," he said.

"Similarly, France hampered monetary reform by seeking the return to the gold standard and fixed exchange rates, although she has now floated the franc and presumably acknowledged, at least in this regard and at least to herself, the error of her ways," he said.

Successor To Shultz Won't Wield As Much Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two years after he became the first economist to head the Treasury Department, Secretary George P. Shultz is stepping down. He had become one of the two most powerful men in the administration.

Shultz announced his resignation Thursday, saying it would become effective in early May.

Sources said it was unlikely his successor would be given the same authority he had.

Shultz is to the economy what Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is to international diplomacy, but the Kissinger flair for limelight is not a Shultz trait. His style is to conduct his business quietly and without fanfare.

One aide argued Shultz is the most powerful secretary of the treasury since Alexander Hamilton, the country's first.

In announcing his resignation, Shultz indicated he was tired after five years.

"There is a tendency perhaps to stay too long, in that you don't have the ability to get up to a wide variety of topics as you once were.... the time has come to move on to something else," he said.

President Nixon did not immediately name a successor to Shultz. Federal energy chief William E. Simon still is considered the front-runner for the post, but informed sources say his appointment by no means is certain.

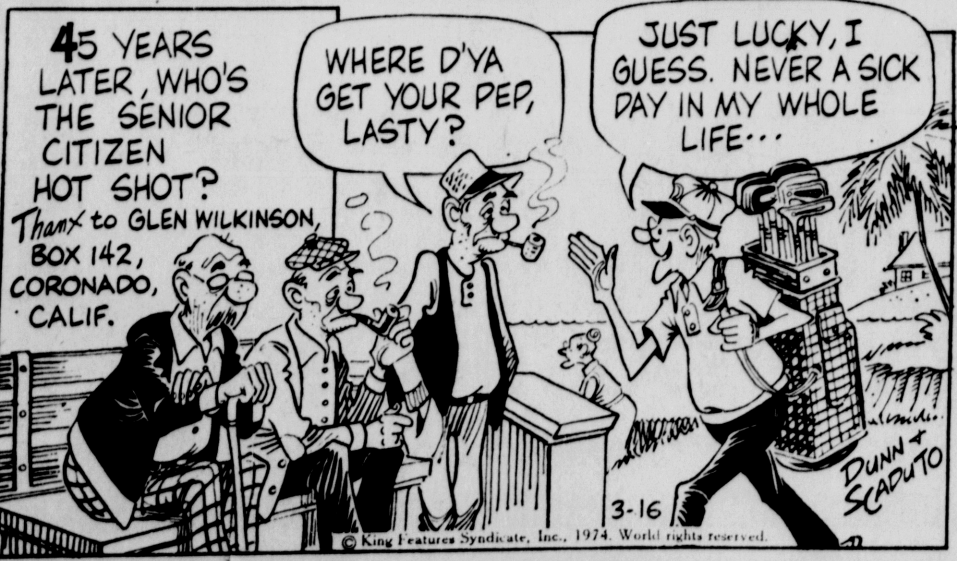

Simon said as much to newsmen who asked him whether he would be named secretary. "I don't think that's a safe assumption at all. I would do whatever the President thinks is in the best interest of the country, but energy is my job," he said.

Shultz, 53, is the last member of the original Nixon cabinet. He started out as secretary of labor in 1969, became first director of the new Office of Management and Budget in 1970 and moved to treasury in June 1972.

He also has the title of assistant to the president and has had almost total authority over the domestic economy and the country's international economic affairs.

Local Funds Distributed

Circleville and Pickaway County will receive $12,860.80 in Local Government Funds, in what State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson reports as the largest distribution Local Government Fund money in the state's history with $6,908,594.38 going to Ohio's 88 counties.

The money, $2,881,350.94 more than the February distribution, is derived monthly by taking 3.5 per cent of state collections of personal, corporation and sales taxes during the preceding month. Ferguson noted that the March distribution is usually the largest due to the great influx of corporation taxes in that month.

Eleven-twelfths of the amount of money, or $6,332,909.96, was distributed on a formula basis to the 88 county Local Government Funds, while one-twelfth, or $575,684.42 was divided up and sent to the cities and villages collecting local income taxes.

News Of Interest To Women

The Circleville Herald, Saturday March 16, 1974

'Bloomers To Bikinis' Monday Club Program

"Bloomers To Bikinis" was the topic of the program presented by Mrs. William Cox for the recent meeting of Monday Club in Pickaway County Historical Society room.

Mrs. Rex Wood presided over a brief business meeting in the absence of Mrs. Wallace Higgins, president.

In "Don Quixote," Cervantes writes, "Ne'er look for the birds of this year in the nests of the last." Perhaps nothing illustrates this more than the world of fashion. Women, either by their own doing or through manipulation by designers, have long fought against looking like last year's bird!

There is a gap wider than the ocean between young Victorian couples on a picnic, carefully and uncomfortably dressed, even to jackets and neckties on the men and the young men and women at a Rock Festival in the 70's unabashedly bathing together in the buff in a convenient pond. That gap is filled by the Gibson Girl, the Flapper, Bathing Beauties, Rosie the Riveter, Hippies, and Women Libbers to name a few. For fashion does reflect the climate of the times. It has been noted that economic prognosticators who have developed astute intuitions glance at the fashion columns of newspapers almost as regularly as the business pages. They may not like to admit publicly they believe the old adage about business conditions coinciding with the length of skirts, but in their calling, it doesn't hurt to touch all bases.

Ancient Romans thought blonds had more fun. Blond wigs imported from Germany or made from hair of German captives were common says the World Book Encyclopedia. Roman women also dyed their hair as a part of their routine and some went so far as to sprinkle their locks with gold dust in their efforts to disarm a Centurion or two.

Perhaps one of the first boons to fashion in our country came during the gilded age of the 1870's. Machine-loomed fabrics became a reality. It opened up a whole new dimension for the American woman. She no longer had to choose between the coarse homespun or the expensive imported fabrics.

By 1880, America was emerging into the Victorian period. Parlors were decorated to the point of being cluttered; architecture was in the gingerbread period. Modesty was the keynote for behavior.

In 1885, a boy's magazine printed the serial "Little Lord Fauntleroy". Immediately, mothers made their sons miserably rigging them out in black velvet suits, lace collars, and love-locks waving.

The 1890's may have more a reputation for gaiety than they deserve, for the decade was not all beer garden and German Bands, strawberry festivals and bicycles built for two. Some were working too hard for too little money. Even so, it was a bustling, energetic, exuberant era. The nation was turning its back on many old ways and setting out on a new course.

Achingly lovely in shirtwaist dresses and pompadoured hair, girls on bicycles were beginning to show a flash of the calf! Illustrator Charles Dana Gibson created the Gibson Girl. Here was beauty, self-assurance, freedom from the old self-subservency of woman to man.

Girls appeared on the beaches in dresses just below the knee with sailor collars and short or no sleeves. Their legs were covered with stockings and ruffled caps perched coquettishly on their heads.

The 20th Century came in fresh as paint and by 1909 had started to roll. Total change took place. The world was intoxicated with its new art, new music, new way of life and new clothes. No dresses had ever been cut like those of these new designers. It was a fashion world of luxury, optimism and gaiety. Some women were daring to smoke cigarettes. In 1904, a woman was arrested in New York City for smoking in the back seat of an automobile.

Paul Poiret, a leading designer in 1909, was freeing the female body. He was annihilating the corset. His ideal woman was a reed, a willow in a high-waisted Grecian or Persian tube-gown. He had a penchant for tassels and called them "tools of coquetry".

The history of bathing suits had been one of less and less. In the Victorian years, a woman hardy enough to enter the water did so completely swaddled in many yards of cloth; pantalettes covered her lower legs and she was expected to wear a corset. By 1913, the pantalettes had been trimmed away and no corsets. In another ten years, the one piece knitted suit would scandalize the beaches and there is no need to detail here what has happened to swimsuits recently.

With the close of World War I, America entered into the Jazz Age, The Flapper Era, The Roaring Twenties. It was during this flamboyant, flirtatious time that Cole Porter began the beguine, Jean Harlow turned platinum into gold, and Clara Bow was the bee's knees. It was a dynamic decade. Soft, floating dresses (often in white), swinging ropes of pearls, deep cloche hats and tiny veils captured female imagination.

In July 1921, the bathing beauty contest was discovered. The contest held in Washington saw the girls wearing hats, tunic suits and stockings. By September of that year it was a different story in Atlantic City. The girls paraded the Boardwalk in tight, one piece suits and bare legs.

Two very important things were happening to fashion in the 30s. Schiaparelli was the first to use the zipper in couture and nylon went into production in 1938 in a modest way. At first it was used as toothbrush bristles but it soon became the yarn and thread that was to gladden female hearts.

In the beginning of the 40s, skirts reached a bit below the knee. Spectator pumps, pageboy hair-dos, reversible raincoats, the classic shirtwaist dress and boleros were popular. Women were delighted with their new nylons which were ever so much longer than silk hosiery.

Rosie the Riveter made it patriotic to wear slacks as she went to work in defense plants across the land. In years to come, that trend would move from the realm of patriotism to one of fashion.

As the decade came to a close, off-shoulder blouses, rolled pedal-pushers and flats were finding their way into wardrobes of younger women. Ankle straps, padded shoulders, pill-box or off-the-face hats and long curly coiffures were part of the fashion scene.

The decade of the 50s has been called the complacent era but with the advent of Sputnik, the complacency was to erupt into the restless years. To many of the younger women, fashion became a dirty word. Long, lank hair, old jackets, ragged faded jeans, sandals or moccasins, no make-up and sometimes no soap—boys and girls alike—became an all too common look. It was no longer fashionable to be in fashion and while they decried conformity, they conformed to their own sloppy attire.

Fashion showed less and less fabric and more and more woman. Mini skirts and hot pants and bikinis became the rule. While men ogled the mini-skirted females and the mini-skirted females heralded their new found freedom, there were those who found it increasingly hard to buy new clothes. In compromise, the designers came up with the pants suits. While they often made us ponder Ogden Nash's line "Have you seen yourself retreating" they did, at least, cover

Officers for the coming year were elected at the recent meeting of Laurelville Church of God Missionary Society at the church.

Margie Ebert, president, read scripture from the book of Philippians and Josephine Hardman led in prayer. Margie Ebert read a letter concerning the annual WMS board meeting held in Zanesville and a letter of thanks from the Swackhammer family.

Elected were: Alma Radabaugh, vice president; Judy Clifton, secretary; Carol Holbrook, treasurer; Josephine Hardman, director of spiritual life and Bertha Wiggins, director of missionary education.

Each member will be receiving the traveling basket which will find something prepared by one lady and given to another until all have received it.

The society agreed to cook the meal for the annual Laurelville Alumni Banquet to be held May 18.

Members are to think and pray about having an all-day work meeting once a month. Plans were made for a bake sale before Easter.

Josephine Hardman used "Personal Work For Jesus" as her topic for devotions. She also read a poem entitled "So Much For Granted."

Rosemary Picklesimer and Bertha Wiggins served refreshments at the close of the meeting following prayer by Marilyn Fry.

Pumpkin Show Ideas Discussed By Class

Pumpkin Show ideas and projects were discussed during the Friday night meeting of Crusader Sunday School Class, Calvary United Methodist Church, at the home of Helen Abney, 149 W. Mound St.

A bean supper preceded the business meeting conducted by Rosemary Flowers. Cards were signed and sent to Dale DeLong and Marge Ward. It was agreed to order flowers to decorate the church for Easter Sunday.

A planter will be sent to Eloise Dray in honor of the opening of her beauty shop and the class will give $50. to the Easter offering.

Following the meeting pumpkin desserts, made by members, were served.

The next meeting will be hosted by Marvin and Marlene Widmar, and Louis and Maxine Gerlach.

Dinner To Fete 50th Anniversary

The 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John E. McNichols of Laurelville will be celebrated March 24 at the Stump Run Fellowship Building on Stump Run Road, one mile off Route 180.

A basket dinner will be served at 1 p.m. with all friends and relatives invited to the open house.

Miss Wanna V. Swackhammer and John E. McNichols were united in marriage on March 24, 1924. They have resided their entire lives in Hocking and Pickaway Counties.

The couple has seven children, Robert, Merl, Ronald, Herman and Howard McNichols of Laurelville; Mrs. Bertha Glenn of Circleville and Viola Dillie of Laurelville. There are 16 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

the retreat!

And what of tomorrow—will it be bloomers or bikinis? There's an old adage that says history repeats itself. You've come a long way, baby. Are you ready to go back to cotton drawers, bustles, buttonhooks and frizzing irons? Or maybe, just maybe, we'll all soon be fashionably attired in space suits riding that buggy to the moon. In the world of fashion, anything can happen.

'Graduation Day' For Bulls Announced

The Ohio Bull Testing Program will graduate 36 bulls come April 1 and 2. According to W. W. Wharton, Extension Specialist, Animal Science, and chairman of the bull testing project, the bulls will have completed their 140 day test period on these dates.

Local bulls in the state-wide test which are of interest are those owned by G & H Research Farm and Van Camp Charolais Farm, both of Circleville. The G & H Charolais bull has been averaging 3.21 lbs. per day for 112 of the 140 day period and the two Van Camp Charolais bulls have been averaging 3.00 lbs. per day.

The bulls are weighed on two consecutive days, and their weights for each day is averaged. Wharton explained that this procedure gives a truer weight of each bull.

These bulls must meet specific requirements to be eligible for certification. An Ohio Certified bull must have gained 2.25 lbs. per day during the 140 day period. The bull must also have a 2.25 lbs. per day lifetime gain. He also must meet a grade minimum of at least 13.

For the bulls that do exceptionally well, a Superior Certification program is granted. The Ohio Superior Certified bull must have gained 3.00 lbs. per day, have a lifetime gain of 2.50 lbs. and grade at least 14.

On Monday evening, April 8, bulls meeting the certification standards are eligible to sell in the 5th Annual Ohio Performance Tested Bull Sale. John Curtiss, secretary of the Ohio Hereford Association and sale manager, commented that the sale, starting at 6:30 p.m. under the viaduct at the Ohio Exposition Center, will be a bull smorgasbord this year. He stated that 35 of the bulls are of special crosses along with 5 different purebred breed groups. Breeds and combinations include: Angus, Charolais, Hereford, Polled Hereford and Red Poll, Murrey Grey, Chianina, Short-horn, Simmental, Guernsey, Holstein, Jersey, and Brown Swiss.

Professor Wharton urged all cattle breeders interested in production testing to attend an organizational meeting of the new Buckeye Beef Improvement Federation which will be held prior to the sale on April 8. The meeting will be called to order by President Henry Bergfeld at 1 p.m. in the Rhodes Center at the Ohio Exposition Center.

See Record Crops If Weather Holds

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new survey by the Agriculture Department has renewed prospects of record wheat and corn harvests this year if tractors do not run out of fuel and the weather is favorable.

The department said Thursday farmers intend to plant 78.8 million acres of corn this year, a 10 per cent increase from 1973. The new estimate was in line with indications in a preliminary survey made last January.

Although the department's Crop Reporting Board did not include production estimates in Thursday's report, a new analysis based on the March 1 planting survey will be issued today.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Playing Her For A Fool

DEAR ABBY: I don't have any actual proof, but I think my husband is cheating on me.

First he came home smelling of real strong perfume with lipstick on his collar. (He said his boss' wife came in and hugged him "hello," but that was all.)

Another time when he took off his shirt I noticed several long scratches on his back. He swore he didn't know how he got them, but Abby, they were too deep and long for him not to know.

(I think some lady did it with her fingernails.)

Also, he's come home with hickies (love bites) all over his neck, and when I asked him about how he got them he said it must be "hives" from eating strawberries. (Where could he get strawberries now?)

I've quit calling him at work because the guys down there always say: "He just stepped out for a minute," then I hear them laugh.

We've been married for two years and he would like a child, but I'm not sure he'd make a good father. He says he loves me. Should I believe him, or do you think he's playing me for a fool?

DUM DUM

DEAR DUM: If circumstantial evidence could hang a guy, yours has all the rope he needs. First let him prove he can be a good husband before you make him a father.

DEAR ABBY: Should a family alter their lifestyle each time the husband's parents come to visit?

We are in our early thirties, and my husband has been smoking and drinking since his college days, but his parents still don't know it.

When they come, everything of which they disapprove is hidden. This includes coffee, soft drinks, candy, and believe it or not, sugar, cough syrup, and aspirin. We even have to keep our friends away if they are Catholic, Jewish or black.

My husband's parents live 250 miles from us and visit about three times a year, and when I know they're coming I feel like a hypocrite hiding things, and substituting honey for sugar, and ditching some of our friends. What do you think?

WONDERING IN N.C.

DEAR WONDERING: You shouldn't flaunt the contrast in your lifestyles but neither should you alter yours in order to deceive your in-laws. If they don't adjust a little to your way of living, they may stay away from it. And from your description of them, you and your children might be better off.

Gilligan Nixes King Demand On Borsari

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan's office brushed aside Friday a second letter from Frank W. King, president of the Ohio AFL-CIO, asking the dismissal or censure of a state employee.

"It's a closed matter as far as we are concerned," said Robert Tenenbaum, Gilligan's press secretary.

The letter involved an earlier protest from King in which he alleged that Charles Borsari, who formerly worked for King but now is an employee of the Industrial Relations Department, was found in AFL-CIO headquarters last Friday without permission.

Borsari said he obtained permission from Warren Smith, the union's secretary-treasurer, to enter the building to make copies of a book he prepared while employed there. Smith confirmed he had given permission.

However, King, in his letter Friday, insisted Borsari did not have official permission. "At the very least, Mr. Borsari exercised extremely poor judgment when he remained for some time in the building after all other employees had left ..." he wrote.

King, a frequent political dueler with Gilligan, said he was not satisfied with an investigation into the matter by John E. Hansan, the governor's chief of staff.

"It would seem, under the above circumstances, that he (Borsari) be properly censured or dismissed," the labor leader told Gilligan.

Gilligan said previously that Borsari, "as any other state employee," would be dismissed if found guilty of unethical conduct, and "jailed" if he did anything illegal.

"He hasn't been charged with anything," Tenenbaum said.

Texas Firm Charged In Consumer Case

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Texas photo enlargement service has been charged by the state with giving false information to Ohio customers.

Atty. Gen. William Brown said United Laboratories of America has been doing business in rural east and northwest Ohio as United Portrait Album Plan. Brown charged Friday the firm has violated the state Consumer Sales Practices Act, by failing to include certain required fees totaling $100 in quoted prices.

Economic Loss High In Walkout

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A 2½-week-long strike by some 27,000 coal miners in southern West Virginia cost the industry 3.7 million tons of production, according to the West Virginia Coal Association.

A coal association spokesman estimated direct economic losses at $21 million in salaries, worker benefits and state taxes. He said the strike resulted in a $70 million to $80 million revenue for coal companies.

Meanwhile, about 85 per cent of those participating in the work stoppage were back to work by Friday evening, the spokesman said.

The Pocahontas Fuel Division of Consolidation Coal Co. reported all of its mines were working Friday, and the U.S. Steel Corp. said "about 90 per cent" of its mines were back in operation. Bethlehem Steel Corp. officials reported that its operations were still shut down.

A spokesman for United Mine Workers District 29 in Beckley said about half of the miners in McDowell County—where the strike originated—were back to work.

Jack Perry, president of UMW District 17, said some miners in Kanawha and Boone counties were apparently awaiting a scheduled meeting Sunday before returning to the pits. The miners have been deciding on a week-by-week basis whether to return to work.

The back-to-work movement began Wednesday night after Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr. announced a 30-day suspension of his order that motorists with more than a quarter-tank of gasoline left not be allowed to buy more gas. The quarter-tank rule had been of prime concern to the striking miners who drive long distances to and from work.

In court action Friday, seven McDowell County miners alleged by authorities to have been leaders in picketing activities were handed sentences and fines.

But three hours after the seven were placed in jail, McDowell Circuit Judge Jack Marinari suspended their sentences and gave them 120 days to pay their fines. There was no explanation of his decision to suspend the sentences. Ellis England, who received a suspended six month sentence, was fined $500. Receiving suspended 30 day sentences and fined $250 were Gary Morgan, Capels; Thomas Craft, Maitland; Roger England, Capels; Lloyd Felts, Capels; and William Stevenson Jr. and Lewis Pierce, both of Welch.

U.S. District Judge Dennis R. Knapp extended for 10 days a temporary restraining order prohibiting picketing in District 17 and part of District 29.

Knapp said he hoped by the time to order expired the situation would be resolved and "we won't have to pursue it any further."

Rhodes Urges Single Job Training Agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes has called for a single federal agency to take the red tape out of job training programs.

Rhodes told the National Advisory Council on Vocational Education Friday the agency would direct the four component parts of job training: manpower training, vocational education, adult education and technical education.

Rhodes, who is chairman of the council, said the consolidation would save up to $100 million.

Twins Lose Again; Now 0-9

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Minnesota Twins aren't seeing double...or even single ...these days. Every other major league baseball team has at least two exhibition victories to its credit, but the Twins are still looking for that elusive No. 1.

Friday's 5-0 loss to the St. Louis Cardinals made it nine times in a row the Twins have come out on the short end of the stick.

"I'm not happy with the way we're playing," understated Manager Frank Quilici, trying hard to console himself with the fact that the Twins, like all other clubs, will be 0-0 on opening day.

"I'd like to see us start to execute and make the plays we're supposed to make," he continued. "We spent five of our first seven days on the road and it's tough to get your work under those conditions. Now that we'll be home for a few days we'll have a chance to work on fundamentals."

If anyone's having more trouble than the Twins, it's Steve Blass of the Pittsburgh Pirates. The 1971 World Series pitching hero walked 10 batters in four hitters in the Bucs' 6-4 loss to the Atlanta Braves.

Ken Brett and Blass held the Braves hitless until the seventh inning when Hank Aaron got a single. However, Blass had walked two runs home in the sixth. Mike Lum then tagged him for a three-run homer in the seventh to snap a 3-3 deadlock.

Elsewhere, Mark Bombardier allowed one hit in five innings and Juan Marichal made a successful debut with Boston in the Red Sox' 3-1 triumph over the New York Mets. Marichal yielded the Mets' run but surrendered only two hits in three innings.

A couple of rookie pitchers— San Diego's Dave Freisleben and Cincinnati's Tom Carroll— didn't fare too well.

Freisleben, the leading hurler in the Pacific Coast League last year, was charged with six runs in one inning— plus and left the Padres' 14-3 rout at the hands of the San Francisco Giants complaining of a sore shoulder. Ed Goodson led the Giants' attack with two singles, a homer and three RBI.

Tommy Davis' bases-loaded triple highlighted Baltimore's seven-run explosion in the sixth inning against Carroll, who was making his spring debut, and helped the Orioles beat the Reds 10-9. Carroll also gave up a two-run homer to Paul Blair in the fifth.

Ex-Dodger Willie Davis opened the bottom of the ninth inning with a triple and Ken Singleton homered on rookie Eddie Solomon's next pitch, giving the Montreal Expos a 4-3 victory over Los Angeles.

Rookie Cliff Johnson lashed two singles, a double and a home run in leading the Houston Astros past the Detroit Tigers 6-1.

In other games Milwaukee beat Oakland 9-6 Cleveland shut out California 2-0, the New York Yankees beat the Texas Rangers' 'B' squad 5-2 while the Rangers' main unit beat Kansas City 9-8, and the Chicago Cubs defeated Arizona State University 10-7.

BIG CATCH—Melvin McNeal of Circleville holds a 16½-pound, 38-inch Muskie caught in the tailwaters of Deer Creek Dam after a 33-minute battle.

24 Teams In Cage Regionals

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Five former state champions, headed by seven-time winner Middletown, lead 24 high schools into regional tournament basketball title games today around Ohio.

Middletown, with its seven crowns, has won three more than the four other ex-champions combined and Paul Walker, the fabled Middies mentor, isn't slowing up any.

"I sure would like to get to the state tournament one more time," drawled Kentucky native Walker while scouting Columbus Regional teams Friday night.

If Middletown can stop defending champion Cincinnati Elder in the Dayton Regional, the Middies will take on the Columbus Regional king in a state semifinal game next week.

Middletown won state titles in 1944,

1946, 1947, 1952, 1953, 1956 and 1957, the last five under Walker, who has 650 career coaching victories.

Elder won its only championship last winter. Mount Vernon, which nipped Celina 60-59 Friday night, is the other former big school champion still going. Mount Vernon won the 1922 crown.

There are no former titlewinners left in Class AA, while defending champion Marion Pleasant and 1972 kingpin Gnadenhutten Indian Valley are among the Class A survivors.

The 12 winners in the regional title games will form the semifinals for the three divisions next week in the 52nd state tournament at Ohio State University.

In Class AAA regional finales, Middletown, 20-3, plays Elder, 20-3, at Dayton, Lorain King 19-4, faces Toledo Scott, 21-2, at Kent, No. 1 ranked Canton McKinley, 23-0, draws Boardman, 22-1, at Canton and Columbus Brookhaven, 14-8, and Mount Vernon, 18-4, battle at Columbus.

In Class AA, it's Akron Manchester, 23-0, against Twinsburg Chamberlain, 22-1, at Canton, Camden Preble Shawnee, 20-3, vs. Cincinnati McNicholas, 18-6, at Dayton, Elyria Catholic, 12-11, vs. Genoa, 22-1, at Bowling Green and Tiltonsville Buckeye South, 21-3, vs. Columbus Hartley, 18-5, at Athens.

The Class A championships match Lorain Clearview, 21-2, against Dalton, 22-1, at Canton, Indian Valley South, 19-4, vs. Peebles, 20-4, at Steubenville, Mount Blanchard Riverdale, 20-3, vs. Continental, 24-1, at Bowling Green and Pittsburg Franklin-Monroe, 23-3, vs. Pleasant, 20-3, at Dayton.

N.Y. Yankees Face Old Problems

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The New York Yankees will have a new ballpark this year, but the same, old problems—weak defense and not enough pitching.

The "homeless" Yankees head into the 1974 baseball season at Shea Stadium with virtually the same cast that finished fourth in the American League East last season.

Playing in the New York Mets' stadium while their own Yankee Stadium is being remodeled may present even more problems as well for the American League team.

The Yankees' right-handed hitting, specifically catcher Thurman Munson and designated hitter Jim Ray Hart, may be given a lift because of the shorter power alley in left-center field. But the left-handers will miss that short porch at Yankee Stadium.

And the pitchers will miss the long center-field, says Yankee ace Mel Stottlemyre.

"I'll be more conscious of the fact that I must keep the ball down in Shea," says Stottlemyre, a sinker ball pitcher who had a 16-16 record and 3.07 earned run average in 1973.

George Medich, based on his 14-9 won-lost record and 2.91 ERA as a rookie in 1973, must be considered the Yankees' No. 2 starter.

These two pitchers were the only consistent ones for the Yanks last season, and Manager Bill Virdon, in his first year, will really have it tough unless Fritz Peterson, Steve Kline, Sam McDowell and Pat Dobson do better than last season.

Fritz Peterson slumped to an 8-15 record, Kline was a washout because of injury, McDowell was 5-8 with a modest 3.95 ERA and Dobson 9-8 with an even worse 4.24.

Along with this questionable starting staff, the Yankees' relief pitching has been weakened by the loss of Lindy McDaniel. He was traded to the Kansas City Royals for right-fielder Lou Piniella and Ken Wright, a pitcher of lesser accomplishment.

King of the hill in the bullpen will be Sparky Lyle—but the southpaw may have to work harder with the departure of McDaniel. Lyle saved 27 games and posted a 2.51 ERA last year.

Piniella should add punch to the Yankee batting order, which also includes some pretty good hitters like Munson, Hart, center fielder Bobby Murcer, left fielder Roy White, third baseman Graig Nettles and Ron Blomberg, when he's playing first base.

When Blomberg isn't playing first base, it'll be Mike Hegan.

Shortstop Gene Michael is too old to play everyday and some critics insist that Clarke is too unsure to play at all. The Yankees' need was underscored dramatically when they acquired young Jim Mason from the Texas Rangers and got relatively inexperienced Billy Parker from the California organization in the minor league draft.

Neither looks like the new Phil Rizzuto.

Green Jacksonville Golf Leader

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Hubert Green, who's been there before, held the lead in the Greater Jacksonville Open Golf Tournament today but the lanky, laconic young man wasn't making any rash predictions.

"There's a long way to go and I'm not predicting anything," Green said Friday after his five-under-par 67 had given him a one stroke lead through 36 holes of the $150,000 event.

"I've been here before and gone the other way," Green said. "I've been here before and stayed here. Anything can happen yet."

Green, gunning for a fourth title in the last 12 months, birdied four of the first five holes he played Friday and put together a two round total of 137, seven under par on the 7,088 yard Deerwood Country Club course.

One stroke back at 138 Homero Blancas and John Mahaffey, who shared the lead at the end of 18 holes. Blancas built his round of 67 around an eagle three and Mahaffey took a 70 in the mild, cloudy weather.

Arnold Palmer, at 44, still a crowd favorite despite his lack of recent success, moved into contention with a 69 that he called "my best tee to green round in a long time—certainly this year." He was tied at 139 with Leonard Thompson, Jim Wiechers and Nate Starks.

Colonels Rip Memphis

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John Roche doesn't quite feel at home with Kentucky yet but he's working on it.

"We've been playing pretty good together lately," said Roche after the Colonels whipped the Memphis Tams 122-109 Friday night in the American Basketball Association.

"Sometimes it takes longer than two months to adjust but I feel like I'm working in."

Roche, who was traded to the Colonels by New York in January, came off the bench to score 23 points against Memphis, 10 of them in the fourth quarter to help squelch a Tams' rally.

Elsewhere in the ABA, New York rolled past Denver 112-93, Carolina dumped Utah 114-105 and Indiana outlasted San Diego 142-129.

Kentucky's victory kept the Colonels just one game behind New York in the ABA East Division race. The Colonels can gain the top spot tonight in Lexington when they host the Nets.

"It's not an end of the world game, but we're up for it," said Roche. "I think if we win it we'll win our division."

Artis Gilmore scored 26 points and Dan Issel had 22 for Kentucky against Memphis. Randy Denton led the Tams with 19 points.

NFL Owners, Players Start Negotiations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Meeting under the cloud of a possible strike that could wipe out the exhibition season, National Football League owners and players began to negotiate a new contract today.

The 1,200-member NFL Players Association presented its demands to the NFL Management Council, the bargaining agent for the owners.

Oral Roberts Coach Suspends Himself

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Ken Trickey has fouled out of today's NCAA basketball playoff game between Oral Roberts and Kansas.

A police arrest led the emotional Oral Roberts coach to suspend himself from the Midwest regional finals Friday.

"As a result of the high standards at Oral Roberts, I think it advisable to suspend myself immediately," Trickey said, commenting on his arrest for driving while intoxicated.

Trickey, who has had personal problems with the Rev. Oral Roberts, the school's president, has already resigned his job, effective at the end of this season.

The Titans' popular, 40-year-old coach met with Roberts behind closed doors Friday and later issued a brief statement to newsmen:

"I was stopped (Thursday night) by the highway patrol on my way home after attending NCAA activities with coaches and friends. I was taken downtown and had charges filed against me.

"The charges are in the hands of my attorney and will be answered in court."

Trickey's only comment on his meeting with Roberts: "President Roberts concurred with my recommendation and I will make no more comment."

Assistant Coach Jack Sutter took over Trickey's job for the game at Tulsa, Okla., one of four regional finals today.

UCLA, the defending national champion and ranked No. 2 in the country, met San Francisco for the West championship at Tucson, Ariz.

Michigan faced Marquette at Tuscaloosa, Ala., for the Mideast title, and top-ranked North Carolina State played Pitt at Raleigh, N.C., for the championship of the East regionals.

The four winners advance to next week's championship round at Greensboro, N.C. The semifinals will take place on Saturday, March 23, and the NCAA title game will be played the following Monday, March 25.

Trickey, who once vowed to bring a national championship to Oral Roberts in a unique, "five-year plan", ironically took himself out of the picture at a crucial moment.

Warriors

Top Lakers

LOS ANGELES (AP)—If George Johnson could play full time he might be the National Basketball Association's second leading rebounder.

Instead the 6-foot-11 reserve of the Golden State Warriors is a resident of the bench and plays only when big Nate Thurmond can't because of various injuries.

Johnson turned in another spectacular performance Friday night, grabbing 30 rebounds, scoring 14 points and helping the Warriors take over first place in the closest of the NBA's divisional races with a 112-107 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers.

Johnson got able help from another reserve, Cazzie Russell, who scored 35 points.

The two teams, who clash again tonight in Oakland, are in a virtual tie for the lead in the Pacific Division. The Lakers have won one more game and lost one more and trail Golden State by two percentage points.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Detroit beat Milwaukee 93-89; Cleveland edged Boston 104-103; Chicago dumped Buffalo 114-97; Houston defeated Capital 114-105; Philadelphia downed Phoenix 108-101; Portland downed New York 108-105, and Atlanta romped over Seattle 126-107.

"There just aren't enough words to describe the job that George has been doing for us," said Warrior Coach Al Attles. "He played quite a bit earlier in the season when Nate was hurt but recently he's had some fantastic games against (Elvin) Hayes, (Kareem Abdul-) Jabbar and two games against Bob Lanier."

Trickey's only comment on his meeting with Roberts: "President Roberts concurred with my recommendation and I will make no more comment."

Assistant Coach Jack Sutter took over Trickey's job for the game at Tulsa, Okla., one of four regional finals today.

UCLA, the defending national champion and ranked No. 2 in the country, met San Francisco for the West championship at Tucson, Ariz.

Michigan faced Marquette at Tuscaloosa, Ala., for the Mideast title, and top-ranked North Carolina State played Pitt at Raleigh, N.C., for the championship of the East regionals.

The four winners advance to next week's championship round at Greensboro, N.C. The semifinals will take place on Saturday, March 23, and the NCAA title game will be played the following Monday, March 25.

Trickey, who once vowed to bring a national championship to Oral Roberts in a unique, "five-year plan", ironically took himself out of the picture at a crucial moment.

Hoosiers Edge Tennessee 73-71 In CCA Tournament

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Indiana's Bobby Knight has passed his first-round test in the infant Collegiate Commissioners Association basketball tournament and says he's not so displeased after all.

But the 34-year-old coach, whose 10th-rated Hoosiers outlasted Tennessee 73-71 Friday night, does say he thinks the NCAA tourney should be enlarged.

"I think it should expand to 40 teams and take more than just the champion from each conference," Knight explained.

"First, there is the possibility that the conference winner is not the best team at the end of the season. Second, two or three of the best teams in the country could be in the same conference."

Knight's Hoosiers, 21-5, deadlocked Michigan, 21-5, for top honors in the Big Ten Conference only to lose a playoff to the 12th-ranked Wolverines.

earlier this week.

After stewing over the defeat, the team voted to participate in the CCA and made the trip worthwhile despite tepid shooting.

Indiana hit only 17 of 47 shots and trailed Tennessee 39-37 at halftime in front of a sparse, pro-Volunteer crowd.

But the sharpshooting of John Laskowski and Kent Benson, a 6-foot-10 freshman, soon sent the Hoosiers on a 12-point pree to a 53-44 lead.

Also advancing to the semifinals was Bradley, 20-7, who powered to a 30-14 lead in 9½ minutes and subdued Kansas State 68-64.

Indiana and Bradley will play Sunday against Toledo, 19-8, and Southern California, 23-4, in a meet devised for runnersup.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Concentrate on personal advancement within the framework of your abilities. Learn more about yourself, your latent talents. Be alert to constantly changing trends.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Your planet Venus urges a prudent look at your schedule. Give precedence to matters that require immediate attention. Table such issues as can safely be postponed.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Tempting bait may be held out to you—which could cause you to lose momentum temporarily. But your keen mind can thresh out the REAL in the welter of confusing offerings.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Rarin' to go? This spirit, adequately controlled, can be the forerunner of substantial gain. Predicate action on current needs, quality, timeliness.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Stumbling blocks to progress will be indecision and missed opportunity. Key yourself to deliberate smartly and quickly so that you may reach proper conclusions.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Orient yourself to beneficial changing conditions. Take a long, hard, objective look in order to reach accurate appraisals.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): The Libran, connoisseur of the truly good things in life, should have a field day. Especially favored: artists, writers, entertainers, dealers in fine arts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Better than average influences. Do not rest on your laurels—the past is past. This day is for building for the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): The results of your efforts will be determined by what use you make of talents and opportunities. Stretch out; delve into areas that give promise of delivering more.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Saturn auspicious. Activities should be handled evenly so as not to lap over too much in any direction. Start with a tempo you can keep—and do!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Weigh fitness and the validity of proposed action carefully. Keep your eye on the horizon as you steer ahead.

PISCES (Feb. 20 Mar. 20): Better-than-average opportunities for you to leap ahead and, if one matter seems sluggish, don't think they all are! Your outlook very important.

YOU BORN TODAY are extremely versatile and have a highly creative bent; are idealistic imaginative and romantically ardent. You have a keenly discerning mind, a remarkable memory and strong intuitive powers. You often have doubts about your abilities, however, which keeps you from using your initiative as you should. Put aside such fears and go on to the fine achievement which CAN be yours. And DO try to curb your hypersensitivity. Birthdate of: Nat King Cole, pianist, composer, singer.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Juvenile Court Terminates Cases Against 25 Youths, 3 Adults

Cases involving six traffic offenders, 19 delinquent youths and three adults were recently finished in Pickaway County Juvenile Court. Included in the cases terminated was a bastardy case in which the defendant agreed to pay the plaintiff $500 in cash. The case was thereby settled before the court.

Judge Guy G. Cline ordered the parents of a child which is presently in the care of the Pickaway County Children's Services to pay a total of $25 per week for her care.

Upon the recommendation of assistant county prosecutor, James R. Kingsley, two charges were dismissed against Terry Sowers, 129 Logan St. Sowers who was charged in juvenile court for violation of probation and contributing to the delinquency of a minor was recently sentenced in common pleas court to a term in the Ohio Penitentiary.

William E. Adkins, 17, Ashville, appeared on a defective exhaust charge filed by Highway Patrolman L. P. Hardesty. Adkins received a $10 suspended fine and was ordered by the court to attend traffic school. A second charge against Adkins was transferred from Franklin County. Charged with driving an unsafe vehicle, he was sentenced to another $10 suspended fine.

Driving while under suspension brought a fine and license suspension to Mark Anthony Lutz, 16, Route 2. The court suspended $25 of a $50 fine and suspended Lutz's license for one year. He was also ordered to attend traffic school and had his driving rights restored for work only while his license is suspended.

Highway Patrolman D. E. Norman filed charges in juvenile court against 18-year-old Richy Brown, Route 1. Brown, charged with speed, received a $10 suspended fine and a one-month license suspension. He was also ordered to attend traffic school and had his driving rights restored for work and school only during the suspension.

Douglas E. Radabaugh, 17, 499 E. Franklin St., was arrested by Sheriff's deputy J. Phillip Brown for speeding. The court suspended a $10 fine and suspended Radabaugh's license for one month. Judge Cline also ordered him to attend traffic school.

A charge of driving on a temporary permit without a licensed driver was filed against Danny Wayne Wetzel, 16, Route 4. He was sentenced to a $10 suspended fine, a one-month license suspension and ordered to attend traffic school. After he obtains his license, he will be allowed to drive to work and to traffic school during his suspension.

Two cases were terminated with the Pickaway County Children's Services because the youths were over 18 and were living independently. One case was terminated because the youth was receiving Social Security insurance and another because she was receiving aid for dependent children.

A 17-year-old Atlanta boy pleaded guilty to a charge of theft and was placed on probation for one year. A sentence to the Ohio Youth Commission was suspended. Another Atlanta boy was charged with theft and the assistant prosecutor recommended the case be dismissed.

School truancy charges brought a 10-day jail sentence to a 16-year-old Ashville boy. The court suspended a sentence to the Ohio Youth Commission and placed the boy on probation for two years. The jail sentence was suspended and the boy was placed in the temporary care of his uncle.

A 14-year-old Route 1, girl received a 10-day jail sentence for violation of probation. Eight of the days were suspended and she was given credit for two days already served. A sentence to the Ohio Youth Commission was suspended and the girl was continued on probation. A second girl, also of Route 1, received the same sentence for violation of probation. She is 16 years old and was also continued on probation.

Attempted assault charges filed against a 17-year-old Route 4 boy brought one year's probation. The court also ordered the boy to complete 100 hours of community work and ordered him not to associate with the two persons involved in the incident.

Two Route 4 girls, ages 14 and 15, were found by the court to be incorrigible and were sentenced to the Ohio Youth Commission. The sentences were suspended pending entrance of the girls into the Sailors and Soldiers Children's Home.

A 16-year-old Circleville boy, charged with making harassing phone calls and violation of probation, was placed on probation for two years. A sentence to the Ohio Youth Commission was suspended.

Violation of probation charges against a 16-year-old Circleville girl brought a sentence to the Ohio Youth Commission and a 10-day jail term. The girl is to be held for 90 days pending further orders from the court. A similar sentence was passed by Judge Cline on another 16-year-old girl, from Route 3. She is also being held for further disposition by the court.

A 13-year-old Route 1, Williamsport child was released from the Ohio Youth Commission to the parents and placed on three years probation for school truancy.

Nine days of a 10-day jail sentence were suspended on a violation of probation charge against a 17-year-old Circleville girl. The girl had already served one day and was given credit for it. She was continued on probation.

Four Derby boys, ages eight, ten and two 11-year-olds, were charged with the trespassing by force, stealth or deception in the unoccupied building of the Grove City Farmer's Exchange in Derby. All four children were placed on probation for three years and ordered to make restitution for the damages. Court costs were also charged to the youths.

A 15-year-old Route 2, Orient boy received a 10-day jail sentence for violation of probation. He was also continued on probation.

Violation of probation charges filed against a 17-year-old Route 1, Lockbourne girl brought a 60-day jail sentence. The court suspended the jail term except for one weekend on the condition the girl attend school regularly and obey all the rules of her probation. Upon the recommendation of the Buckeye Youth Center, the girl was returned to the care of her mother and ordered to seek psychiatric care. She was continued on three years probation.

March 17-23 Named Poison Prevention Week

Dr. Frank R. Moore, Health Commissioner of Pickaway County Health Department understands and expressed concern for childhood poisonings. Moore joins national efforts in recognizing March 17-23 as National Poison Prevention Week.

Although Moore stated that poison prevention must be every week, he went on to stress the need to bring home the word prevention. "Prevention" in Moore's words, means taking your child's safety seriously and following some suggested guidelines in cooperation with the Accident Prevention and Product Safety Unit, Ohio Department of Health.

1. Keep every potentially poisonous product out of your child's sight and reach.
 2. Be sure all products are properly and clearly labeled.
 3. Keep the poison in its original container. Do not store in food or beverage containers.
 4. Do not store poisonous substances near food or beverage items.
 5. Read the label and carefully follow "caution" statements.
 6. Destroy unused portions of medicine by flushing it down the drain.
 7. Never take or give medication in the dark. Turn on the light and carefully read the label.
 8. Call medicines by their proper name—they are not candy.
 9. Take advantage of the new "child-proof" packaging. They are for your child's protection and they do work!
 10. Have handy the phone number of your nearest doctor, poison control center, hospital and police.
- Ninety-five per cent of all accidental poisonings are preventable; poison prevention week is every week.
